

U.S. Navy May Rush To Laos Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was reported late last night to be planning action to strengthen United States military power in the area of Southeast Asia to meet the threat posed by the new crisis in Laos.

Terror

Terror in new Far East fighting is typified by look on face of 16-year-old girl spy for Viet Cong guerrillas, captured by South Viet Nam soldiers at Truong Hoa, 100 miles south of Saigon.

Columbia Stage Further?

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and British Columbia experts have reviewed certain difficulties in the agreement on the Columbia River Treaty. It was learned reliably Friday, but there was no information on whether the two governments now see eye to eye.

In Toronto, Mr. Fleming confirmed Friday that further discussions on the treaty were held and said other meetings are planned. He did not elaborate.

Spectre of Drought Returns to Alberta

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Ranchers in the shortgrass country of southeastern Alberta are facing the dread spectre of another drought with no moisture, grass, grain or feed reserves left over from last year.

Seeding operations in most districts here have been delayed by the drought conditions. It rained slightly this week but the moisture was not sufficient to bring seeds to life in the parched earth.

Bonner Orders Probe of 'Hell Hole'

By PETER BRUTON

Attorney General Bonner has ordered a full RCMP investigation into the need for police to be stationed at the "hell hole" of Lower Post on the B.C.-Yukon border.

Nearest police is the three-man RCMP detachment at Watson Lake, 13 miles away. By the time they can answer a call for help the violence is usually over.

petition to Victoria signed by many of the 150 Indians and 75 whites asking for an RCMP detachment at Lower Post. But in his talks with government and police officials, all he could get was a promise to put another man at Watson Lake.

understandable basis for his indignation," he said. He promised to get a full report from the RCMP on the state of law and order at Lower Post, even if it means sending a senior investigator from provincial headquarters, and to dispose the police forces in line with any recommendations.

and deserved proper protection just like anybody else. "The main cause of the trouble is an influx of miners and other transients, white trash who think they can abuse the Indian people with little or no chance of being caught," he said.

Queen For Day

Queen Victoria, impersonated by Mrs. Claire McCaul, will ride in a horse-drawn landau in procession marking official opening this morning of Victoria Centennial Society headquarters, 1309 Douglas. She dons costume, above, with aid of Mrs. Norma Margallias. Procession leaves old courthouse, Bastion Square, at 10.30 a.m. and proceeds by way of Langley and Fort to Douglas. (Colonist photo.)

The Man Who Came To Lunch

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa man who decided to eat lunch in the National Gallery's cafeteria Friday found himself in an embarrassing position.

He was met at the turnstiles by gallery director Dr. Charles Comfort. While a photographer snapped his picture with the gallery brass, he was presented with a reproduction of A. Y. Jackson's The Red Barn.

Thus did E. L. Smart, a communications co-ordinator with Bell Telephone, learn that he was the 1,000,000th visitor to the gallery's new building on Elgin Street in the heart of the capital.

"It was a little embarrassing," admitted Mr. Smart. "I think the gallery would have preferred an art lover rather than a person who just came around to eat."

Secret Army Killers Defy New French Crackdown

Fearful Refugees Start Big Exodus

PARIS (AP) — European settlers have begun fleeing to France from Algeria in a flow expected to swell to a torrent as the North African territory becomes independent.

British Market Bid 'Not Going Badly'

BRUSSELS (UPI) — "Things are not going badly," Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak told newsmen when yesterday's opening-day talks on Britain's application to join the Common Market ended at midnight.

"We have studied the British proposals regarding goods manufactured in the Commonwealth and instructions have been given to the experts in this respect."

CRUCIAL PROBLEM
Of the whole range of the talks, Spaak said, "The Commonwealth is certainly the crucial problem."

The British team was led by Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath and Commonwealth Relations Minister Duncan Sandys.

STRONG DEMAND
Sources said Heath opened the session with a strong demand for continued preference for many Commonwealth goods.

The ECM ministers were reported willing to accept a list of not more than 50 items for preferential treatment — but Britain reportedly wants a list of about 500 items.

ALGIERS (AP) — France's top official in Algeria launched a new crackdown on the European Secret Army Friday but terrorist gunmen continued blasting away at Moslems.

Despite the roundup of some of the busiest Secret Army killers, 18 or more Moslems — including seven women — had been shot dead on Algiers' streets by nightfall. Fourteen persons had been wounded.

FOUR DISAPPEAR
Four Europeans — three of them youths in their early 30s — disappeared, apparently kidnapped by Moslems.

In addition, a Jewish merchant was shot dead by Moslems who raced through the European workers' quarter of Abah El Oued in a car, firing guns out the windows.

SHOOT TO KILL
In angry tones, the French high commissioner, Christian Fouchet, broadened crackdown measures, announced the capture of two Secret Army commando units and said up to 1,500 plainclothes men recruited from Moslem rebel army ranks and armed with shoot-to-kill orders soon will be roaming Algiers.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Labor Secretary Jerry Holleman resigned last night and admitted he once took $1,000 for "personal expenses" from Texas farm magnate Billie Sol Estes.

Holleman said Estes gave him the money in January to help cover such expenses as the upkeep of his home. He said he never did anything for Estes in return.

Estes is under indictment for fraud in Texas. The charges against Estes revolve around his action within the government feed storage program.

Victoria Faces 22 Drives

City Community Chest Given Week to Live

By G. E. MORTIMORE

Greater Victoria Community Chest has one week to live.

Unless rescue arrives before next Friday, the 25-year-old co-operative fund-raising organization will shut down and leave its 22 member agencies to raise money by themselves.

Directors of the Chest at a meeting yesterday granted the one-week reprieve against the advice of their executive.

Members of the executive recommended the Chest close at once. But directors turned down the recommendation and decided to throw the Chest on the mercy of the public.

Life or death for the Chest depends on two factors:

• Whether Victoria people show an interest.

• Whether the Chest can recruit a campaign chairman and eight divisional chairmen.

If public response is lukewarm and if no fund-raising leader comes forward, 22 agencies ranging from the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society to the Family and Children's Service will have to knock on doors in separate appeals for money.

THUMBS DOWN
Letters went out yesterday over the signature of Community Chest president George Gregory to 37 top givers, asking if they would pledge themselves to a "united appeal" and turn thumbs down on charities that refused to join.

The donors — commercial firms and individuals — were asked to reply before 4 p.m. Friday, when directors will meet to decide the fate of the Chest.

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrow, volunteered to be campaign chairman next year — provided the Chest survives until then. He said he had no time to spare this season.

Still unresolved is the problem of getting someone to manage the campaign this year.

Mr. Gregory told directors the executive had decided to recommend suspension of the Chest.

DO NOT CONDUCT
"It is my unpleasant job to report to you the unanimous but reluctant recommendation of the executive, that we do not conduct a Community Chest drive in 1962," he said.

Richard Bower moved that the Chest not conduct its annual fund drive this year, "but that it stand ready to reactivate the Community Chest if and as soon as there is a demonstration of public support for a united appeal."

BY SUICIDE
Said Justin Harbord, former campaign chairman: "Sometimes it is necessary to give leadership by suicide."

Except for the year in which it was founded, 1937, he said, the Chest never had been a truly united fund. There had always been other agencies conducting separate appeals.

"It is a very sad thing we now propose, but a very necessary thing in the community interest."

Said Mr. Bower: "The recommendation of the executive was not a decision lightly reached. For some months now your executive has been exploring every avenue . . . There has been a great deal of soul-searching . . .

"We don't point the finger at other charities outside the jurisdiction of the Community Chest. It may be that we are not acting in the interest of the public . . .

PUBLIC REACTION
The hope was the news of the Chest's suspension would stir a public reaction that would restore it to life.

"If there is no response, perhaps the Community Chest is not wanted. This is the way we will find out."

Brian Tobin pleaded for the life of the Chest.

"The public has demonstrated by their support that they do want it," he said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Victoria's longest bannister ride is in the new courthouse—a steep descent of four floors from top to basement in one continuous rail.

The first person who tries this Cresta Run of bannisters sliding will either topple at a curve, fall down the stair well and fracture his skull, or else come rocketing down the slope at 120 miles an hour with his breeches on fire and crash clean through the basement wall—like a character from a Charlie Chaplin movie.

So don't try, please. It's suicide. This may be the reason why the railing is painted red, for danger.

And yet I can't help looking at that bannister . . . "Do you think I ought to write a piece about it?" I asked a colleague. "It might be some rash youth to kill himself."

"Just because you mentioned the existence of the Matterhorn," he replied, "and then someone climbed it, and fell to his death—would you blame yourself?"

Judge Sliding Down

"It's a problem for your conscience," he said. "But say, what a picture that would make—a judge sliding down the bannister."

"Unlikely," I said. "I understand that judges aren't even seen riding the elevator. They have their own elevator, which they share only with criminals and alleged criminals. But if we ever do get a photograph of a judge sliding down that rail, we'll sell it to Life Magazine or Paris Match.

We will, too. . . . As a Victoria city constable arrested a man for being drunk (this second arrest in two days) a bundle of raw asparagus tumbled out from under his coat, and a large potato (also raw) fell from his hip pocket.

Vegetables in Court

Was he trying to get his vitamins? Roy Woolley produced the vegetables in court as evidence. (This man pleaded not guilty.) But the accused couldn't explain where he picked up the vegetables, or why.

The sentence: 30 days in jail.

Admiral W. A. C. Bennett's usually prompt ferry service falters this week, when exceptionally low and strong tides forced the Kaskhoka to go around the islands instead of through Active Pass.

Passengers at the Trawassen end stamped and fretted while they waited for a ferry that was more than 20 minutes late.

In view of such delays, it would almost be quicker to fly.

New Forest Fires No Cause for Fear

More than 20 new forest fires were reported during the past week but B.C. forest service officials say there is no cause for alarm.

The hazard in all five forest districts still is low and no sudden or severe increase is expected yet.

So far this year there have been 102 fires costing a total of $2,128 compared to 85 fires costing $8,500 at this time a year ago.

The estimated cost of the 21 fires during the past week was $185.

"B.C. residents should take advantage of this respite to acquire fire prevention habits for the high hazard periods to come," warned a forest service official.

Bomb Slayer To Be Hanged

QUEBEC (CP)—Phyllis O. Leclerc, 32, Friday night was found guilty of murder in the bomb slaying of Charles-Edouard Baillargeon last July, and sentenced to be hanged.

Baillargeon, 33, died when a home-made bomb exploded in his lap. He was the father of 11 children.

Your Good Health

Don't Bend, Stretch Over Board Burdening Heart While Ironing

By JOSEPH MOINER, MD
Dear Doctor: Would having a rheumatic heart lesion make ironing difficult? I can't seem to do it without getting dizzy and feeling odd.—Mrs. H. L.

Ironing, compared with some other household chores, can be heavy or light work—depending on how you do it.

Is the board too high or too low? Do you stand up, or do you sit on a stool? Do you keep at it too long at a time? Does the room get uncomfortably warm? Do you do much bending, picking things up? (This last would account for the dizziness.)

NEEDLESS BURDEN

If you have to bend over the board, or stretch to reach it, you are wasting energy and hence putting a needless burden on the heart.

The same is true if you stand up when you might better sit. Or if you walk across the room every time you have finished ironing a garment to hang it up. All wasted effort.

Make your head save your heels. Have a table beside the board, for finished ironing. Place the things to be ironed all in one pile, or basket, on a bench or chair so you can reach them without bending.

CAN SAVE MILES

You'd be surprised how much effort can be saved. In fact, the American Heart Association and research groups have found that simple but thoughtful changes in a kitchen can save miles of walking in a few days. If the things you use often are near at hand, you needn't stoop nor stretch to reach them. "Lazy Susan" turntables in a cupboard help save effort.

Dear Dr. Moiner: I have a "cough-a-day" cough. A throat specialist said he thought it was bronchitis. Is there a cure? Is an operation necessary?—Mrs. B.

Bronchitis is a puffing of phlegmy material in a dilated portion of the bronchial tubes. Often infection accompanies it. Symptoms are cough, phlegm, sometimes fever.

Positive diagnosis can be made by X-ray methods.

Treatment varies with the severity. Antibiotics and postural drainage, meaning taking time occasionally to lie with the head lower than the chest to clear the passageway, are often adequate treatment. In any case, nose, throat, dental or other infections above the bronchial region should be eliminated. In severe cases, surgery sometimes is required.

Chest Given Week

Such agencies as the Family and Children's Service had long since disbanded their fund-raising organizations and would not have time to rebuild them.

The Family and Children's Service depends on the Chest for a minority of its budget—roughly $70,000.

LAST JANUARY

The bulk of funds come from governments. The agency could not raise $70,000 at such short notice Mr. Tobin said.

"If we were going to disband, we should have done it last January, not in June."

"There seems to be a feeling that this is going to be a mainly lesson to the community," Mr. Tobin remarked. "But I don't see how, with this behind us, we will ever be able to get going again."

"Who will trust us? It's about 50 years since the first war, and they still remember the Sally Ann charged a nickel for coffee. How are we going to live this down in 50 years?"

Said John Wallace: "To bow out now would be taking the easy way."

BASEBALL, HOCKEY

"With the apathy that exists in Victoria, and all the good things that have gone out of Victoria . . . baseball, hockey . . . everybody wants them, but they never come back. I have a horrible feeling that, if we give up on this at this point, it's just another thing that will quietly slip away."

"I don't think the public will take the reaction you expect. They will be quite indifferent to it. You will have $2 agencies all canvassing funds and all going short."

Mr. Gregory said suspension would produce five main results:

• "Agencies without public appeal will . . . fall by the wayside."

• Agencies that have public appeal will get money to carry on.

• Organizations such as the John Howard Society, the Borstal Society and the Family and Children's Service would get extra government support.

• "Some volunteers will get back to the jobs which they have become accustomed to paying people to do."

"There will be such a profusion of appeals that . . . the people will rise up and demand a form of Community Chest that is truly a United Appeal."

Although the first resolution was still on the floor, Capt. Ronald Newell's resolution to grant one week's delay was accepted and approved.

First-Class Flights Soon To Mainland

It will be possible to book "first-class" accommodation aboard a TCA plane to Vancouver by the end of the month, district traffic and sales manager Robert Kolt reported yesterday.

But it is improbable many Seattle-Vancouver-Victoria commuters will take advantage of the new arrangement. First class seats cost more and give the passengers "extras" such as meal service.

But the aircraft on the run are based in Winnipeg and operate with first and economy class seating.

Slaps at Kennedy Good News for West

Daily Colonist, Victoria, B.C., Sat., May 12, 1962 3

By BOB EXELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer
President Kennedy is facing an unrelenting barrage of criticism on the homefront—and, oddly enough, this may be a good omen for the rest of the western world.

In times of world crisis the domestic opposition to the president of the United States appears to relax. It may even heed a call to lend its moral support to the president if, say, he feels it necessary to strengthen defences quickly. But when the president's foreign problems have been lightened, his critics attack with vigor. And that is what is happening now, particularly on the issue of government interference with business and labor.

FEW HOT SPOTS
The suggestion that Kennedy's foreign worries are not pressing at the moment points to a relative lack of international hot spots. Less emphasis on international affairs was shown, too, at Kennedy's last press conference.

Of the 19 questions he was asked, the great majority—14—was confined to domestic issues. Only four had to do with foreign affairs. The other was a foreign-domestic combination—nuclear testing.

An East-West ball also seemed to have been pointed up by the recent conference of NATO foreign ministers in Athens.

Periodically, Soviet Premier Khrushchev has rattled rockets in the direction of Greece, warning it of reprisals for its membership in the Atlantic alliance.

Yet the choice of Athens as a meeting place for the NATO foreign ministers elicited no Kremlin threats. Similarly the action of the U.S. in putting five Polaris submarines at NATO's disposal caused hardly a ripple.

No one can be sure of the reason for this, or why it is that the Berlin crisis is at a low ebb. But a form of spring solicitude seems to have settled over the whole international spectrum.

For instance:
● The disarmament conference continues in Geneva, but without its opening bluster.
● Indonesia again announces that it is putting itself on a war footing to "liberate" west New Guinea, but the "liberation" of a political crisis, that the forces still don't rear their heads.

● India threatens military action against Communist China in connection with their Himalayan border dispute, yet tales of fighting are unheard of.

● And how long ago was it that Argentina was in the throes of a political crisis, that the United Nations was fighting in The Congo, or that near-anarchy reigned in the Dominican Republic?

But all that has passed, or so it seems. When Kennedy's critics relent it may be time to worry again.

Boys Admit Fatal Switching

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP)
Two boys, aged 11 and 14 have admitted throwing a switch that sent a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train crashing into cars on a siding, killing one crew member and injuring another, railroad police say.

J. H. Yarnovich, 42, fireman on the train, was killed. Engineer J. R. Owens, 44, is in fair condition in hospital.

The 13-car train was en route from West Brownsville to Uniontown when the crash occurred. The impact flipped a gondola car into the air and it came down on the engine, smashing the cab.

The youngsters were released in custody of their parents.

U.S. May Cut India Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate foreign relations committee voted 8-7 yesterday to cut U.S. foreign aid to India by 25 per cent, reflecting in part the Nehru government's "failure to line up with the free world."

Pay, Hunger Strikes Spread Over Europe

LONDON (UPI)—Union delegates of Britain's 70,000 dockworkers voted yesterday to carry out a national strike.

Labor Minister John Hare has failed in his efforts to break the deadlock and the cabinet is planning to call out troops and declare a state of emergency if necessary.

The strike is set for midnight Sunday. Employers and unions still are seven cents apart on wages.

Four other western European nations also were hit by labor or student unrest:

● An estimated 70,000 or more miners have been on strike for five weeks in northern Spain and the walkout has spread to other industries. The government Friday decreed the first of a series of wage increases designed to stop the walkouts.

● In Austria, 150,000 metal workers in big industrial plants are on strike for wage increases of 6.5 per cent. It is Austria's worst walkout since the Second World War.

● In France, six railroad unions ordered a 24-hour strike of 350 workers Tuesday in support of pay demands.

Other strikes have hit the Paris subway system, air lines, postal and telephone services and the metallurgical industry.

● Portugal cracked down on a student revolt at Lisbon University by arresting 85 hunger strikers and more than 1,000 other students and members of their families who were protesting government interference in academic life.

Orbiting Delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—America's timetable for a second manned orbital space flight yesterday was set back at least two more days until May 18 by the same problem that plagued the first flight—difficulty with the space capsule's control system.

For instance:
● The disarmament conference continues in Geneva, but without its opening bluster.

● Indonesia again announces that it is putting itself on a war footing to "liberate" west New Guinea, but the "liberation" of a political crisis, that the forces still don't rear their heads.

'Family' Trade Area Out

INVERNESS, Scotland (UPI) — Foreign Secretary Lord Home said Friday Commonwealth governments would never accept a Commonwealth free trade area, advocated by some as a desirable alternative to the European Common Market.

"Some people plead for an extension of (Commonwealth) preferences something like a free trade area within the Commonwealth," he said. "But although it is a nice idea the simple truth is that it could not be accepted by other Commonwealth governments."

Lord Home said: "Preferences for our industrial goods in Commonwealth markets have been steadily eroded by the Commonwealth governments in recent years in order to protect their growing industries... the process is inevitable and... right."

He said he believed entry into the Common Market would enable Britain to serve the Commonwealth in its development and expansion.

Romeo of the Ridings

LIBERAL leader Lester B. Pearson's persistence in making amorous advances to the New Democratic Party is rapidly gaining for him the reputation of being something of a Romeo of the ridings. And he may come to the same sticky ending.

Whether or not his intentions toward the NDP are strictly honorable, of course, remains to be seen. At times it seems that he is anxious to take advantage of the fact that the NDP has failed to recover after the forced demise of the old CCF by following Bohn's dictum that the best time for courtship is when a widow returns from the funeral; while at others he seems content to play the role of a mere and somewhat flippant flirt.

How, for instance, should his latest approach to New Partyists be taken when he tells them that there is really no difference at all between the Liberal Party's ideals and objectives and their own? The only separation of views between the two parties, he claims, is that the Liberals set priorities.

This definition of the Liberal Party platform will come as much of a surprise to its own supporters as it doubtless has to the followers of the NDP.

Certainly it appears that the Liberal leader is making ready to make a serious proposal any day now. Perhaps he has decided that the only way he can make headway in the election campaign is to lead the New Partyists either up the garden path or up the aisle.

But whichever course he follows will quickly bring home to him the realization that in politics this is not a game that only two can play.

Thus he may well have set himself a task beyond his capabilities as leader of a national political party. It is more than probable that through his recent inviting words to the New Partyists he has lost the confidence of many rank and file members of his own party.

Disillusioned Liberals may now have cause to remember Prime Minister Diefenbaker's prediction that this election would be fought on the basis of private enterprise versus socialism. Mr. Pearson has now verified this and chosen the side of socialism.

The Jaycee Fair

IF FOR NO OTHER reason than simple enjoyment, the annual fair sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, opening on Monday, would merit full patronage. But there are reasons aplenty.

One is that this annual prelude to the Victoria Day celebrations imparts to the community an appropriate gaiety and sense of togetherness, the more effectively in proportion to attendance.

Another is that the fair makes a significant contribution to Greater Victoria's economy, stimulating interest in local products and services to the ultimate benefit of everyone; even directly, producing the fair provides work and puts many thousands of dollars into circulation.

But not the least of the reasons is that this year the Junior Chamber hopes the exhibition will bring in the $25,000 which, matched by a government contribution, will pay for a radio-isotope laboratory at Victoria University, and which the young businessmen have pledged whether their enterprise succeeds to this extent or not.

What better incentive for the community to enjoy itself at the fair?

Very Welcome, But ...

ONE SWALLOW does not make a summer, but the mass arrival of these little wingsters and their cousins, the martens, during the past few days has buoyed up hopes that more reasonable weather is on the way.

They are such friendly, daring and graceful little creatures with their red or white breasts and blue-black backs that we like to have them around. But isn't it a pity they can't be trained to be a little tidier and cleaner in their habits?

The little birds choose to build their homes under the eaves, and the swallows, or is it the martens, appear especially to favor those spots which are immediately above doors and patios where people pass.

There they will flutter in and out for the next four or five months, bringing up two or perhaps three families and all the time doing their housekeeping by the simple method of ejection from the front door of the nest, to the intense discomfort of the humans below.

There comes a time when this elementary form of disposal taxes the tolerance of people below, no matter how much they love and admire these little feathered friends.

As homebuilding is now starting, it would be nice to know if there is any way in which the swallows can be directed to less inconvenient spots. They have absolutely no use for man-made nesting boxes, and being shooed away seems to make them more persistent than ever.

Is it cricket, we wonder, to use long poles to destroy the nests while they are in the building stage? Or do we just have to suffer and take the good with the bad?

After all we would not like our friends to leave us altogether, for it is an old saying that a house that attracts swallows is a lucky and happy one.

But how can a nesting notice be written to let them know, "Not just here, but 'round the corner, please"?

Now Which Is That?

A VANCOUVER firm of brokers advises its clients that in the forthcoming general election they should put their long-term interests as investors ahead of all previous party loyalties.

Norman Whittall Ltd. suggests there ought to be a strong opposition and blames too powerful government majorities for Canada's spending on "excessive social welfare, featherbedding of one section of society at the expense of another, and wasteful defence."

Urging that the development of a favorable investment climate in Canada should be put ahead of everything else, Whittall concludes:

"Our inclination is to favor the party which will spend least."

Now which one would that be?

"Dad—what's it worth if we don't tell Mum you've forgotten Mother's Day?"

U.S. Election Bills Alarming

WHILE many people here are speculating about the Democratic challenge to Mr. Nelson Rockefeller for the governorship of New York in the autumn elections, others are worrying about the fabulous costs of American electioneering.

Altogether, elections to public office in the United States in 1960 cost between $165 and $175 million. The presidential election of that year cost the two major parties almost $20 million; 50 per cent more than in 1956.

These spiralling costs for the elementary functioning of democracy have caused a good deal of alarm. And their potentially unsavory implications have led a presidential commission to propose a number of ways of combating this political inflation. The emphasis in the commission's report is not, however, on the control of political spending; the major approach is to broaden the base of voluntary contributions to party funds.

One suggestion is that contributions up to $1,000 should be deductible against income tax with the chief support coming from the little man instead of relying on big business, the unions, and extremely wealthy individuals.

The report is the work of nine men, Democrats and Republicans. It is therefore not surprising that they saw it as their job to suggest ways to strengthen and purify the finances of the two major parties. There is no comfort for the splinters and mavericks of American politics in their recommendations.

The very fact that the president set up such a commission is an indication of how worried people have become over rising election costs and the makeshift ways of meeting them. The president has said, "It is not healthy for the democratic process, or for the ethical standards of our government, to keep our national candidates in this condition of dependence."

The commission uses even stronger language; it speaks of parties and candidates having to "put themselves in a 'moral bank' by running out of funds during a campaign so that only swift help from rich individuals or groups who may demand a return for their generosity can ensure their rescue."

The commission suggests that not all the electioneering costs are really necessary, but points out that in the heat of the battle no campaign manager can afford to experiment with economy. "Most politicians agree that half the campaign expenditures are wasted; but no one knows which half." The most radical measure considered was a proposal for federal subsidies. This system actually works in Puerto Rico (which is not one of the United States but has a sufficiently similar political system and traditions to be a relevant example). The experts personally investigated the position in Puerto Rico and found the subsidies system worked well.

But they rejected the idea for the U.S. on two main grounds: One, a characteristically American faith in voluntary action; the other, a fear of shifting the balance of power to the party hierarchies if they were to control handout money. Nevertheless, the report makes it plain that if other reforms do not stimulate

The High Cost of Democracy

All that can be done, it concludes, is to do everything possible to encourage small gifts, while improving the system of disclosure so that more accurate knowledge will be available about exactly who depends on whom for what.

The report also points out that existing U.S. statutory limitations on political fundraising are a dead letter. It talks about the "widespread cynicism about the democratic system" produced by present practices. At the same time, it recognizes that it will be some time before the parties are able to collect enough money in small amounts to meet their needs.

Introduced Aneur

Forced Labor

A MARKED reimpediment of forced labor in African countries which have recently gained independence from France is pointed out in an International Labor Office report.

The report, which "regrets to note that in some countries various forms of compulsory labor services which may be used for economic development have recently been instituted," specifically mentions Congo (Brazzaville), Gabon, the Ivory Coast, the Malagasy Republic, Mali and Senegal. Moreover, Cameroon and Niger are reported to be considering the creation of a compulsory labor service.

Other countries reported to be using forced labor for economic development under the guise of military service or labor corps are Greece, Israel, Rumania, Hungary and Spanish Guinea.

The ILO report has been compiled by a group of experts under the chairmanship of Sir Ramses Wiedemann (India). The experts studied some 3,000 reports from 176 countries and territories and had the task of assessing the degree to which governments were observing the 1930 ILO forced labor convention which was widely ratified and originally designed mainly to remedy the situation in colonial areas.

The later (1957) ILO convention, which abolished forced labor for political purposes and was aimed mainly at the Soviet orbit as well as other types of dictatorship, has not yet been ratified widely enough to yield the volume and kind of information on which the experts could base a considered judgment. The experts found, however,

The coronation of George VI and Queen Elizabeth took place in Westminster Abbey 25 years ago today—in 1937—on the day on which Edward VIII was to have been crowned. Edward, who abdicated 11 months after the death of George V, married Wallis Simpson three weeks after the coronation.

1820—Florence Nightingale, the reformer of hospital nursing, was born.

themselves as the poor party, and in fact their debt was deeper in 1960—$3,800,000 against the Republicans' $700,000. But nowadays they get massive support from organizer labor. There are also industrial and business interests, such as Texas oil and the aircraft industry (which is suspicious of Republicans as too "proud" and "economyminded") which have poured money into the Democratic coffers.

Thus, for some time yet, in spite of the hopes and proposals of the new report, the old pattern will continue to prevail. But the report does come up with a delightful suggestion which could in time revolutionize political finance.

F. P. Kilpatrick, of the Brookings Institute in Washington, wants collection boxes put at the checkout counters of supermarkets. A future president could thus float to office on the change from millions of items priced, as is customary, at so many dollars and 99 or 99 cents. He could be a product of the abundant, high-consumption, free market economy.

Nuclear Missiles

BRITISH observers at the American nuclear tests on Christmas Island are waiting anxiously for the results of underwater shots in the series. Data gained from these explosions are expected to have a profound effect on the future of the Royal Navy.

For the present, Britain has ignored the missile submarine as a weapon and has concentrated on bomber-delivered nuclear weapons.

This decision is based, at least in part, on analysis of last fall's Russian atomic tests. Chapman Pincher, British military commentator writing in the London Express, says: "The Russians successfully tested an underwater H-bomb device to combat the U.S. Polaris submarines."

A fairly similar system where the army, recruited by conscription, was used for nonmilitary purposes, was being practised in Greece for road construction and in Israel for agricultural work. The Greek government had claimed that this work was to provide "vocational training."

He finally conceded that this was done "mainly for financial reasons."

The report concludes that in view of the universal condemnation of the practice, "one would have thought that the only forms of forced labor existing today would be vestiges of the dead past." However, "regrettably, this is far from being the case, and certain pointers give cause to the fear that forced labor is being born anew in some countries."

The experts warn that "experience has shown that recourse to forced labor, even when strictly limited in number, is hardly possible without simultaneous recourse to other restraints, in particular various means of political coercion." It therefore seemed inconceivable "that the solution for accelerating economic development should consist of the imposition of forced labor in more or less disguised form."

Pincher said this analysis of the Russian test was one of the reasons why Christmas Island was made available for U.S. tests and why there was no official British opposition to a test resumption. He said the analysis also reinforced the British government decision to continue with air-launched nuclear weapons, rather than turning to underwater missiles.

Derik Wood, London Telegraph air correspondent, recently disclosed that Royal Air Force fighters and bombers soon will be flying from Royal Navy aircraft carriers. By 1968, he said, all RAF and Royal Navy air operations will be co-ordinated.

The decision is a spur to the

Self Esteem

By GREGORY CLARK

IN order to think well of themselves, some people are obliged to think ill of others. This is the theory of a country doctor of my acquaintance who likes to row the punt while I am fishing, and lecture me on human nature.

"Such people," he says, "are usually among the more highly respectable members of the community. Most of them are churchgoers, in my experience. But it is quite apparent that they are thinking of something else while the sermons are being preached, or else the parsons are growing timid. They are about evenly divided, men and women."

"You can't be in their company more than 10 minutes before they start running down some neighbor, often some mutual acquaintance. It is done, of course, in a spirit of great Christian charity, forbearance and understanding. They grieve over the shortcomings of whoever is selected for the purpose."

"And that purpose is to restore their own self esteem. They are not trying to impress me with their superiority over the person being discussed, but themselves. It is one of the forms of therapy. I let 'em go ahead. I am their physician. I can see them feeling better minute by minute. It saves me writing a lot of prescriptions."

Washington Calling

Exposed Position.

By MARQUEE CHILDS

IN the warfare between business and government that periodically breaks out on the Washington front the anti-trust division of the justice department is almost always in an exposed position under sniper fire.

Today a considerable part of the business community seems to regard anti-trust as an arm of reprisal used by the White House to whip business into line. But the anti-trust laws on the statute books for most of this century are there, as the able and energetic staff of anti-trust see it, like all other laws to be enforced.

What touched off the current skirmish was the indictment of United States Steel and the Bethlehem Steel Company on a charge of conspiring to fix prices and rig bids in the sale of steel forgings to the army, navy and electrical companies. The first reaction as the news came over the wires was that there was another assault touched off on order of the president following his bitter dispute over the rise in steel prices.

The facts later disclosed showed, of course, that the anti-trust division had been working on the steel forgings case for more than a year. The investigation of such a complex case and its presentation to a federal grand jury calls for hundreds of man-hours of patient work. As to the timing of the indictment, once the wheels were set in motion the justice department could do nothing about it, even though by coincidence it followed so closely the steel price dispute.

Involving companies manufacturing and selling about $100,000,000 in steel forgings, it was not nearly so complex as the indictment brought against the electrical industry under the Eisenhower administration. That meant 20 indictments for price rigging on turbines and other big equipment, with General Electric named in 19 of them.

The government has filed eight suits for triple damages in behalf of the Tennessee Valley Authority and other agencies. But this is dwarfed by the 1,500 suits filed by private companies seeking damages up to $300,000,000 from GE and the other firms named in the charges. This has put such a heavy burden on the courts that a special committee of federal judges has been named in an unprecedented effort to get some co-ordination in the trial of these suits.

When U.S. Steel's President Roger Blough announced the $6-a-ton price increase and other companies shortly followed suit, the justice department initiated a grand jury inquiry to determine whether this was in violation of the anti-trust laws—collusion on agreed prices throughout an industry. Some members of the business community apparently felt that the suit would, or should, be called off when the rise was rescinded. But the view of the anti-trust division is that if the law as violated, by common action in raising prices and then moving them back, this should be determined and appropriate action taken.

In all this there is nothing new. A suit was instituted in 1920 to compel United States Steel to surrender its hold on the hundred or more companies it had absorbed in the great merger some years earlier. The objective was to restore competition. In 1921 the Supreme Court by a vote of four to three, with two justices not participating, held against the government.

At the first annual stockholders' meeting since the great steel war Roger Blough spoke softly, matching President Kennedy's soft-spoken speech to the United States Chamber of Commerce on the need for business and government to co-operate. But beneath the lofty summit the climate is still charged with rancor and resentment. One incident is being widely exploited. The New York Times, in a lengthy review of the steel dispute, attributed to the president an insulting reference to businessmen.

Nevertheless, this is likely to prove a minor skirmish. The anti-trust division is currently conducting up to 30 grand jury investigations as part of routine enforcement of the law.

Business is nervous. When LATELY HARBOR BUILDERS' machines dropped 31 points on the stock market, reports circulated of an anti-trust inquiry. That was not strictly accurate, although the anti-trust division is looking into whether IBM is living up to the terms of a current decree not to tie in the sale of machines with punch cards to service those machines. From the days of Theodore Roosevelt and his crusade against the trusts this has become a familiar spectacle.

Flexible System In Tax Relations

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson last night unveiled a new "flexibility formula" for federal-provincial tax relations aimed at helping the provinces "achieve their full stature in their own way."

Speaking at a public rally in St. Francis School, Mr. Pearson promised that a Liberal government will allow provinces that so wish to collect financial compensation from Ottawa equivalent to the cost of federal contributions to federal-provincial programs.

"We will ensure flexibility in joint programs, scholarships and university grants," he said, speaking in French to an overflow audience of about 600 persons.

POSITIVE ANSWER

This policy would give Quebec a "positive answer to its justified aspirations on taxation matters."

Mr. Pearson described the flexibility formula this way:

"It is an assurance that if a province wishes to withdraw from certain joint programs, and from scholarships and university grants, that can be done without any loss for the province."

REDUCE FEDERAL TAX

"Thus, any province will either be granted a fixed amount established in the federal budget, or will be able to levy itself taxes corresponding to the established amount, and the federal taxation will be lowered by an equal amount."

A new Liberal government would make equalization payments which will "bring other provinces up to the level of the richest, in revenue per head from shared taxes."

COAST TO COAST

Mr. Pearson made the speech as he swung into Quebec in his coast-to-coast campaign to elect a Liberal government.

He was welcomed at Montreal airport by an enthusiastic group of supporters, carrying placards saying "Coast to coast Pearson's the most" and "Down with the Tories and their sad stories."

After a brief press conference, during which he reiterated previous declarations, Mr. Pearson and his party left by car for a 100-mile drive in the Eastern Townships of Quebec—the area toured earlier this week by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Not Enough Doctors? Ask for Dr. Douglas!

SASKATOON (CP)—Someone asked national New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas why he was in Saskatoon Friday.

Mr. Douglas replied: "Saskatchewan is short of doctors, so they are going to make me one."

Mr. Douglas received an honorary doctor of laws degree Friday at the University of Saskatchewan.

John D Finds Pioneer Links

COALDALE, Alta. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker went main-streeting in this small Alberta farm community of 1,500 and found friends of his family's pioneer days in central Saskatchewan.

Driving from Lethbridge to Medicine Hat, his cavalcade was stopped by a crowd of about 150 at the main intersection here.

He and Mrs. Diefenbaker stepped out of their car and were swarmed by excited children.

THROUGH CROWD

Mr. Diefenbaker walked through the crowd of adults to the sidewalk and talked to farm and townspeople.

Mayor Peter Penner was in the crowd and greeted him when Mr. Diefenbaker returned in his car after a 10-minute stop.

The prime minister's party made other brief stops at Taber, 33 miles east of Lethbridge, Grassy Lake—a settlement of 300-500 miles west of Medicine Hat and at Bow Island and Seven Persons.

ALL CONTRIBUTE

Later, speaking to about 600 attending an afternoon reception in the civic sports arena at Lethbridge, Mr. Diefenbaker said everyone, despite his racial original, had a contribution to make in bringing together all races of men in the building of one Canada.

THE CAMPAIGN | X

Pearson Versus Diefenbaker

Feather Tickles Hammer

By NORMAN MACLEOD

OTTAWA (UPI)—As it approaches the halfway mark, the election campaign is winning comment increasingly here for the two new personalities it has introduced to the Canadian political scene.

One personality is the new John Diefenbaker. The other is the new Lester Pearson.

Actually, both the prime minister and the Liberal leader are long years away from taking their respective public debuts in the present super-colossal spectacles of political mayhem.

Nevertheless, the uncheduled pressures of the contest have forced them into new and unfamiliar roles in which their old images have been hardly recognizable.

They have become virtually different individuals. Parliament Hill observers regard the change in the prime minister as one of the most dramatic features of the campaign so far.

From being a native chieftain has changed into a defensive fighter.

'Top Year' In Tourism

WINNIPEG (UPI) — Resource Minister Walter Diefenbaker predicted last night that 1962 will be a record year for the Canadian tourist industry.

The last leg of the Trans-Canada Highway will be completed this year and the increased premium on the U.S. dollar should attract American tourists, he said.

Party Leaders Show Strain

Loves of Liz Taylor

OTTAWA (UPI) — The current federal election campaign is shaping up as one of the most gruelling physical trials ever imposed on Canadian political leaders.

Indications are that by the June 18 balloting the nation's party chieftains will have travelled more miles, made more speeches and shaken more hands than in any previous campaign.

With the campaign just under way, one party leader already has been partially sidelined. New Democratic Party chieftain Douglas has been forced to battle an attack of stomach flu.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker also has shown signs of strain.

The trouble with Liz Taylor, if you accept the diagnosis her old chum, actor of the year Peter Finch, gave us just before Gerard Fairlie flew off to Rome, is that she is over-charged with emotion. When she falls in love, he said, she genuinely loves and can think of nothing else. Not even of what other people think of her.

She is a one-guy woman, definitely not a woman to divide her interests. Some women take lovers on the quiet and escape the censure, but when Liz loves a man she wants to be married to him.

But none of this answers the question all Rome, and Britain too, is asking: Is Liz in love with Richard Burton?

The April 8th issue of NEWS OF THE WORLD carries the full story of Liz and her many loves. DON'T MISS IT. Now on sale at all newsstands. Only 15c.

"If some countries have too much history, we have too much geography". So said Canada's Prime Minister in the year before TCA was established.

Overcoming that problem—breaking the distance barrier and unifying Canada as never before—was the job your airline took on in 1937. How well has it succeeded?

HOURS INSTEAD OF DAYS. In 1937, travelling time from Vancouver to Toronto was at least 3½ days. TCA's first trans-continental flight slashed this to 14 hours, and today DC-8 passengers make the trip in just over 4 hours. Vancouver to Halifax takes only 8¼ hours.

But this shrinking of the map was inevitable, and the success of TCA's unifying mission must be measured in other terms. The people's confidence in the airline, the number of Canadians who travel and ship by air, the areas served, the frequency and quality of service: these tell the story.

SOME FACTS TO CONSIDER. In its first 25 years, TCA has carried more than 28 million passengers—about 1½ times the present population of Canada.

Last year, TCA hauled nearly a million individual shipments of air freight and express, plus 26 million pounds of mail. (The Canadian Post Office and TCA team up to give Canada the only postal service in the Western Hemisphere in which all first-class mail goes by air.)

TCA planes take off approximately 350 times each day for destinations in Canada, the U.S. and overseas. On heavily travelled routes (such as Toronto-Montreal) TCA operates as many as 35 flights a day linking key cities.

And TCA service is geared to the needs of smaller centres, as well. The job of national unification takes TCA into more than 40 Canadian communities. Two-thirds of these have less than 100,000 population. One-third have less than 25,000. (TCA serves more places under 25,000 population than any other major airline. It makes an important contribution to the fact that 60% of all Canadian airports have scheduled airline service—as compared with 30% in the U.S.)

STILL YOUNG—STILL GROWING. 25 years is a relatively short life span for a major airline—particularly since progress was slowed during six years of war. Most national carriers in other countries have been in business considerably longer.

In that brief period, TCA has grown to be 8th in size among the nearly 300 scheduled airlines of the world, in terms of passenger miles flown. It provides unexcelled services with one of the world's finest aircraft fleets, at fares among the lowest in the world.

With this record of achievement already established, Canadians can look forward in the years ahead to continually growing benefits from an airline operated by and for the people it serves.

Outstanding Citizen

F. E. Winslow Dies In Hospital at 78

One of Victoria's most respected and outstanding citizens, 78-year-old Francis Edward Winslow, OBE, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital early yesterday.

Mr. Winslow, a descendant of a United Empire Loyalist family, came to Victoria in 1912. He was also a direct descendant of Edward Winslow who crossed to America in the Mayflower and became first governor of Massachusetts.

CHARITY WORK

During his years in Victoria Mr. Winslow was consistently active in charity work.

Mr. Winslow received the OBE for his work in selling war bonds and for his services to the community was awarded the Good Citizenship Medal in 1953.

UNTIL RETIREMENT

He was manager of the Royal Trust Company until his retirement in 1949.

Mr. Winslow was president of board of directors of the Sunshine Inn which helped the jobless and needy during the depression.

He was also active in forming the Victoria Foundation, a permanent charity trust fund.

Mr. Winslow was born in Fredrickton, N.B., in 1883. He married Margaret Thompson.

daughter of Senator Frederick Thompson, in 1908.

Their eldest son, Lt.-Col. E. Ward Winslow, OBE, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital early yesterday.

Their two daughters are Miss Pamela Winslow at home, 1044 Craigdarroch and Mrs. Peter Bradford of Nanaimo.

DONATE VALUE

Mr. Winslow's last wish was that anyone wishing to send flowers should donate their value to the Gorge Road Hospital.

A private service will be conducted in the Winslow home by Canon George Biddle on Saturday morning, followed by cremation.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

HAROLD HUSBAND and John Wallace have been added to complete the group trying to regain a Western Hockey League franchise for Victoria. And while it is still a long-shot chance, recent developments have been interesting, to say the least. . . . Mickey Mantle drew 27 bases on balls in his first 16 games this season. Projected over the whole schedule that pace would give him 274 for the full season, considerably more than the major league record of 170 set by Babe Ruth in 1923. . . . about the only consolation for Casey Stengel these days is that no one is yet yelling "break up the Mets" although Stengel is doing his level best to do just that. . . . Seattle keeps being mentioned as a possible site for the Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson heavyweight championship fight but, Seattle sports editor Royal Brougham says, there isn't any chance at all. . . . don't forget that at 2 p.m. today, on Channels 2 and 4, is the presentation of the English Cup soccer final between Tottenham Hotspur and Burnley. . . . Vancouver Mounties have drawn only 8,339 paying customers for seven billings up to last night. The average is 1,191 fans a game, a showing worse than that of the last-place Mounties. . . . annual mixed bonspiel at the Victoria Curling Club, held for the past few years over the Labor Day weekend, will be held this year over the Thanksgiving Day weekend, Oct. 5-8. . . . If Montreal Canadiens move into Vancouver it could well be that the Seattle Totems and Spokane Comets would have to play in Seattle but it doesn't make sense to think that Keith Allen, who has proven one of hockey's better executive types, would be asked to step down from manager-coach to coach. . . . among the hundreds of hockey rumors are that Boston Bruins will acquire goalkeeper Charlie Hodge from Canadiens and that Canadiens will either trade centre Phil Goyette or leave him unprotected in the hockey draft. . . .

LIGHT WORKOUT: Visiting his West Virginia farm home this winter, Sam Huff, linebacker for the New York Giants, got things quickly under control when a horse ran wild. The powerful Huff grabbed the animal by the neck and threw it to the ground, shrugged off his feat with "Shucks, he wasn't half as tough as Jimmy Brown."

THE BUTTON: Asked in Vancouver whether he would prefer to win a car bonspiel or the Canadian championship, Ernie Richardson, three-time Canadian champion, pulled neatly through a port. "Don't be ridiculous," he answered. "I can always buy a car."

ALTERNATE SCRIPT: "A boxing match," heavyweight contender Sonny Liston was telling a Toronto interviewer the other day, "is just like a cowboy movie. There's got to be good guys and there's got to be bad guys. That's what the people pay for, to see the bad guy get beat. But I change things. I don't get beat."

JACK BIONDA, one hour, is willing to play lacrosse again if the price is right. He is negotiating with Nanaimo and, probably, with New Westminster. He'll come high—perhaps as high as the $100 a game—paid in advance—he was said to have received at New Westminster. . . . almost daily rain has been complicating things at Vancouver's Exhibition Park although a spokesman said yesterday that "we're up to our ears in horses and we have 40 riders. . . . Races aren't filling because of bad track conditions, horsemen understandably taking no risks this early in the season. . . . more improvements are due at Mandown Park before our next island racing season, not the least of which will be more stock. . . . We'll have those barns filled over there this year" was a vow from Vancouver yesterday. . . . Don Ashbee wants badly to have a big season for the Victoria Shamrocks and protested strongly when the club followed doctor's orders and kept him out of the last two games. "This is one club I've really wanted to play for," Ashbee moaned, "and now they won't let me play. They will, Don, they will. . . . If Victoria United can win their last two games, against Canadians and 84, Andrews, it should give the club nothing worse than a playoff for the second-half championship in the Coast Soccer League. It's a reasonable bet that Firefighters will lose at least one of their remaining games, against Columbus and New Westminster Royals. . . . the Pacific Northwest Golf Association, a release discloses, is the second oldest golf association in North America, bowing only to the USGA. The PPGA was organized by the Tacoma Golf and Country Club and the Victoria Golf Club on Feb. 4, 1899, and now has 80 affiliated clubs in B.C., Alberta, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. . . . one of hockey's hottest seats next season will be occupied by the fellow who takes over the job Bud Poile had at Edmonton. Poile bowed out with a championship club and the loyalty of those who report on hockey doings in the city. . . . and isn't it about time that Lawrence Weik learned to speak English?

GUESSING DEPARTMENT: Gorge Hotel to win the district soccer playoff and, by request, United to lose in Vancouver. Nanaimo to get its first Inter-City Lacrosse League win tonight and the Orioles, Yankees, White Sox, Dodgers and Giants in major baseball. Betting average to date: At bat 81, hits 55, percentage .679.

Mounties Climb Up From PCL Basement out of the lead, chopped four players yesterday—third baseman Jim Fingen, pitcher Ed Palmquist, catcher Wendell Antonio and first baseman Julio Becquer, who will stay with the club until assigned elsewhere by Minnesota.

Vancouver Mounties climbed out of the basement in the Pacific Coast Baseball League last night, moving a few percentage points past Spokane Indians with a 4-0 victory over Tacoma Giants.

Last night in Tacoma it was Don Williams winning his second game with a five-hitter. Mounties got only four themselves off four Giant pitchers, but bunched them for three runs in the fourth inning.

Painters wasted no time in leaping to the front in the Independent Softball League. In the first week of league play, Painters played four games and won all of them for a one-game lead over Cantina, who played and won twice.

Pilgrim's Progress Halted

Locked tightly after both had missed are Earl Pilgrim, left, and Ralph Thurn of Haney. Action took place in last night's Pacific Northwest Meet of Champions at Memorial Arena. Thurn, Alberta light-heavyweight champion in 1958 and Canadian runner-up in 1960, won when referee stopped fight at end of second round, after Pilgrim's nose had been well worked over.—(Colonist photo.)

Cardinal Decisions Kozak In Slam-Bang Mitt Final

If Larry Cardinal sticks to his announced decision of making this his last year, amateur boxing in these parts will have lost its most pleasing performer.

The PCLC once-corporal, Pacific Northwest and B.C. Golden Gloves champion, "saved" what had to be termed a somewhat disappointing fight card at Memorial Arena last night with a rousing, slam-bang decision over Edmonton's Walt Kozak, former Canadian middleweight champion.

It was properly scheduled as the feature bout, and it proved just that.

Kozak, an experienced veteran who was a member of the 1956 Canadian Olympic team, probably won the first round, but he couldn't hold off the determined Cardinal. The second round evened things up and Cardinal kept punching as hard as he could as often as he could to rock the tiring Kozak in the final two-minute heat.

NO DOUBT There was no doubt of the decision, and the 1,000 fans had no argument with the award of the "Centennial Boy" Trophy to Cardinal.

Cardinal had only one rival for the award on the star-studied card billed as the Pacific Northwest Meet of Champions. That would be Jodie Harris, a trim and professional-looking light-welterweight from Portland who was runner-up in his division in both the 1960 and 1961 U.S. championships.

Good as he was, Harris could not effectively solve the defence of the slightly-bigger Harry Cleary, Canadian Army welterweight champion, and neither fighter did much damage.

Several of the other nine fights were interesting but only one or two provided the kind of action expected from the records of the principals.

FANT OPENER

For action, the opener between Victoria's Danny Macdonald and Cesare Biancuffore was probably second only to the wind-up. A swarmer who makes up in intent aggressive what he may lack in finesse, Macdonald kept forcing the issue, knocked Biancuffore down in the second round and kept his edge in a wild-swinging third round.

Judges had difficulty in separating the winner from the loser in only two fights. Victoria's Tommy Black, tagged hard several times by overhand rights and not making the most of his advantage in reach, lost a split decision to Kaiman Santoro of Vancouver.

BIG DISAPPOINTMENT

In the other close one, Johnny Howard, announced the U.S. light-middleweight champion in 1961 and current PNW Golden Gloves champion, got the call over Edmonton's Gus Cameron, Canadian Army champion. Howard, however, was the evening's biggest disappointment.

Results: Danny Macdonald, Victoria, decision over Cesare Biancuffore, Vancouver. Welterweight. Kaiman Santoro, Vancouver, split decision over Tommy Black, Victoria. Light-middleweight.

Norburns Shock New Westminster

VANCOUVER—Burnaby Norburns, taking advantage of a situation that hasn't cropped up in the Inter-City Lacrosse League for years, scored three goals on an empty net here last night and posted a stunning 10-6 victory over New Westminster.

Norburns, full value for the win with their tenacious checking and hustle, got their break midway in the third quarter when goalie Les Norman of New Westminster was given a penalty for wraparound.

Since Norman committed the offence outside his crease, he was forced to serve the two-

Garry Stevens, Dick Crompton and Bill Cooksey each scored twice against Norman, who had given up only four goals in his last two games. Ron Bodnar, Don Boyd, Terry McKibbin and George Longman got the others.

It was Norburns' second victory in four starts, and left them in a position of being able to tie Vancouver and Victoria for second place with a victory against winless Nanaimo tonight in Nanaimo.

Cliff Sepka, league scoring leader, got three of the New Westminster goals. Jack Barclay, Mike Gates and Ken Oddy were the only others to beat rookie goalie Skip Jolly, who made 30 saves.

Five of New Westminster's six goals came with Norburns short-handed.

Gene Jordan TKO Victim

ABERDEEN, Wash. (AP)—Seattle lightweight Luther Thomas scored a technical knockout over Gene Jordan of Victoria in a minute of the second round Friday night.

Thomas floored Jordan in the first round at a boxing tournament here for the count of six and the Victorian was down for seven in the second before referee Bill Loomis stopped the preliminary bout.

Senior Baseball Starts Sunday

Victoria's Senior Amateur Baseball League will open the new season with a doubleheader Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Naval Vets play Transport Workers in the opener at 1 p.m. It will be followed immediately by a game between Eagles and Builders.

League will be able to use Royal Athletic Park only until centennial events take precedence. At that time it will move to Macdonald Park.

City council recently put back a $500 item originally lopped off the budget to cover cost of readying Macdonald Park for baseball use, after the Victoria Amateur Baseball Association changed its mind about refusing to use the park.

Cash Crashes One Over Roof

Army Private Stops Yankees Cold

Pvt. Jim (Mudcat) Grant, on Sunday hurled from the arm, stopped New York cold and Indians turned on two big swinging bursts for a 7-1 victory that cut the Yankees' American League lead to a half game.

Grant (2-0) limited the big hitters of the Yanks to three singles for seven innings. Then John Romano, four more runs crossed in the seventh.

At Detroit, Norm Cash cracked a roof-clearing home run and Paul Foytack stopped Boston Red Sox on five hits in a 3-1 victory for the Tigers.

Cash's clout that sent Detroit ahead 3-0 in the sixth was only the sixth fair ball ever hit out of Tiger Stadium. It cleared the 94-foot high third deck at the 350-foot mark.

At Baltimore, the last-place Washington Senators scored 11 runs after two were out in the sixth inning and walloped the Orioles 12-1 behind the six-hit pitching of rookie Dave Stenhouse.

The lowly Senators, seeking their sixth victory in 24 games, were nursing a 1-0 lead when season long frustrations exploded with a vengeance, including a grand slam homer by Gene Woodling.

At Los Angeles, Bo Belinsky, making his first start since his no-hitter last week, scored his fifth straight victory as the Angels defeated Chicago White Sox 4-2.

At St. Louis, veteran Duke Snider and rookie Larry Burright sparked a 16-hit attack with three RBIs each as Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Cardinals, 8-5, and replaced the Redbirds in second place.

Minors was knocked out when he crashed into the wall trying to catch Snider's drive. Minors, who suffered a head injury, was carried off the field and hospitalized with a skull fracture.

Stan Musial went hitless in three trips as he continued his assault on Homer Wagner's National League career hit mark of 3,430. Musial is one hit away, but has been blanked in his last two outings.

SHUTS OUT GIANTS

At Houston, Dick Farrell, a right-hander, shut out San Francisco 7-0.

It was the first shutout of the season for the potent Giants, and the first of his major league career for Farrell (3-2).

Picked by the Colts from the Dodgers in the player draft, Farrell was 190 and 170 pounds, 6'4" tall, and 170 pounds.

Johnson Seeks Gold and Glory

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harold Johnson, the National Boxing Association's light heavyweight champion, fights for more gold and glory than the veteran of 16 years in the ring has ever known when he defends his crown tonight against young Doug Jones of New York.

Although he won the title Feb. 7, 1961, at Miami Beach with a nine-round knockout of Jesse Bowdry, and since has defended it twice, Johnson says he never felt like a real champ.

The 33-year-old Philadelphia fighter gives two reasons: 1. His title isn't recognized in New York, California and Massachusetts—non-NBC-states—nor in Europe; 2. He hasn't made any real money with the championship.

A victory over the 25-year-old Jones, who has won 19 of 28 fighting, could eliminate both reasons for Johnson. New York has withdrawn its recognition of Archie Moore as 175-pound champion, and will recognize the Johnson-Jones winner as undisputed king. The European board has followed suit. Massachusetts probably will fall in line.

GUARANTEE GOOD

As for money, Johnson is guaranteed $20,000 from the television receipts and 60 percent of the live gate estimated by promoter Herman Taylor at $30,000. It will be the largest purse in Johnson's career. Jones will get $17,500 plus expenses.

The two fighters are opposites in style, which could mean a good battle. Johnson, although he has knocked out 21 of his 67 victims, is a counterpuncher.

He sits back and waits for an opponent to make a mistake.

Garden Notes

Like Good Haircut!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I was just thinking the other day what a fine, co-operative and trouble-free plant we have in Aubrietia, and I don't know how we could ever get along without it for clothing our rock gardens and dry walls. The display this spring has been unusually good, as if the plants were making a special effort for centennial year, but such heavy and continuous blooming is very exhausting for the plants, and it is about time something was done to give them a helping hand.

The first step in the rejuvenation of the plants is to take a pair of scissors and clip them back hard, shaping each specimen to a neat, hemispherical tuft. Don't be half-hearted about the job—Aubrietias enjoy a good haircut—and they'll soon demonstrate it by pushing out a lot of healthy side shoots which will give a second display of bloom later in the season.

It is only fair, after such a prodigious generosity of bloom, that the plants be given a square meal following their haircut. Any water-soluble high-test fertilizer in solution would do the trick, although with Aubrietia and with most rock garden plants, I prefer to make up a special feed.

This consists of coarse sand and Pink Vigoro, one cupful of the fertilizer to one bucketful of sand. After thorough mixing, I make the rounds of my Aubrietia plants—Arabis and Alyssum get the same treatment—dumping a good double handful into the heart of each clump, tucking a bit more around the outside edge.

You get a two-way action out of such a mixture. The fertilizer provides nutrients, while the sand creates a texture favorable to the formation of new roots.

If you need a few more clumps of Aubrietia to fill up the odd gap or blank spot in the dry wall or rock garden, this is a good time to lift and divide a few plants. Moistening the soil first, then pry up a clump with the hand fork and separate by pulling it to pieces with the fingers. Make sure each tuft has a fair share of roots attached, and replant the pieces where you want them to bloom, enriching each pocket of soil with a little bone meal and peat moss first.

A lot of rhubarb plants around town seem to think that they, too, should put on a display of bloom for the centennial celebrations, for the flower stalks are shooting up in many a backyard rhubarb clump.

This is not at all a good sign, for such premature bloom is an almost sure sign of some unhappiness at the roots. Rhubarb, in common with many other plants, responds to a feeling of insecurity by making a frantic effort to perpetuate the race — by flowering and setting seed.

Chances are such early-flowering clumps have exhausted their soil, or haven't been given the annual surface mulch of old, rotted manure to which they are entitled. Such plants should be lifted, divided, and replanted in fresh, heavily-manured soil. This is not the time of year to do this job, but such plants should be earmarked to be shifted into new quarters this fall.

Dissent's Out of Fashion

WASHINGTON — At 10.45 a.m. E.S.T. on April 25 a B-52 dropped a hydrogen bomb which lit up a large area near Christmas Island in the Pacific. On the floor of the U.S. Congress that day, the next, or yet, there has not been a single audible word of protest about the resumption of testing.

Now, whatever you think about the resumption of testing, it is certainly a debatable subject. It has been debated around the world without cease among scientists and plain people of all stripes of intelligence for five years. There is a great deal to be said on both sides. But how can anyone defend congressional silence on what is, after all, a subject of towering importance not only to our generation but to future generations?

The word debate is not easy to define and that makes it hard to pinpoint when the last serious debate occurred on the senate floor. Some congressional observers feel the last real debate on foreign policy was over NATO, the so-called troops-to-Europe issue in 1949. The last debate anyone remembers where oratory actually changed votes was over the censure of Sen. Joseph McCarthy and that was eight years ago.

There's nothing resembling organized doctrinaire opposition from the Republican party. The doctrinaire minority leaders like Senators Taft and Knowland have been replaced by Senator Dirksen, who has no apparent fixed position on anything. Even thoughtful Democrats in congress will tell you (privately, of course) that it's bad for the country that we don't have an opposition leader of the vigor and principle of Senator Taft.

Everyone, Republican and Democrat alike, wants to be popular at the White House these days. In fact, it is not putting it too strongly to say that everyone, Republican and Democrat alike, is downright scared to be unpopular at the White House where wrath is swift and terrible.

Rep. John Lindsay, New York Republican, one of the few who dares speak up strongly, says: "I blame the Kennedy family for much of it. It's gotten so that if you're against the Kennedy family, you're against progress. You can't discuss these things. The party line in the House of Representatives is that anyone who proposes a different or deeper or better approach to, say, the Kennedy civil rights program, then he's against civilization. I don't think the Kennedys realize how much they're shutting off debate."

Critic at Large

But, of course, it's unfair to blame the absence of debate on Capitol Hill on the Kennedys altogether. The gradual disappearance of dissent from American life preceded the Kennedys by years and it's been going on in many fields and areas for many reasons. One of them is the increasing complexity of life and issues and this has seriously limited debate in congress.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, a formidable speaker himself, deplores the absence of debate but he points out that some of the great opposition figures in congress, like the elder Senator LaFollette and Senator Borah, were debating relatively simple issues. But the issues are no longer simple.

"Atomic energy is a new force in American life," Senator McCarthy points out. "You find the Administration saying: 'If you knew what we know, you wouldn't hold the point of view you do.' How can you argue against that?" Many of the great issues confronting congress are wrapped in official secrecy.

As far as nuclear testing goes, not only was there no Congressional debate but increasingly there is no forum, no platform, from which the citizen can protest.

Curtis Keen on Cognac

NICE, France (NANA)—Tony Curtis and Christine Kauffman, the girl he "discovered" in Taras Bulba, will be coming to Paris in September to co-star in Mr. Cognac. Before that, the busy 17-year-old star has a date with Warren Beatty for a film in England.

Vittorio de Sica will go to Mexico for his next movie, Children of Sanchez, and has offered the leading female role to Hope Lange. The man he wants is Marlon Brando. The blonde Hope would be a big change from the warm Latin Marlon usually prefers in his pictures. Although, come to think of it, he must have switched to blondes—Sandra Church is his leading lady in The Ugly American.

The French Riviera is like this: Armand, manager of the Whiskey Club in Nice, saw a photograph of Miti Gaynor set against the scenery of Tahiti for her South Pacific film. It all looked so beautiful, including Miti of course, that Armand sold everything he owned hereabouts and went to live permanently in Tahiti!

Actress Pamela Brown reported in London she was paid for six months in Rome before she worked one day in Cleopatra. . . . And one of the minor set designers has been in Rome on the Cleo payroll for six months, she tells me, and hasn't worked at all. The waste of money in the making of this picture, which started last September with only a few pages of script at hand, is almost unbelievable.

Rex Ingram built the studio here, La Victorine, where Glenn is making his movie with Charles Boyer, Hope Lang and Swedish star Ulla Jacobsson. Ingram was the first "runaway" (from Hollywood) producer—in the early 20s. He built the studio for his wife, Alice Terry. Rex is now dead; Alice lives in retirement in the San Fernando valley.

Ricardo and I were discussing the Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton shenanigans on the set of his current Grand Duke and Mr. Pimm movie. And, while Ricardo was careful to say his remarks were not directed against this couple, he did say, "An actor should have as great a sense of responsibility as the president of the United States. An actor gets adulation, he is very well paid, and the greater the privilege, the greater the responsibility."

Charles Boyer, who plays Mr. Pimm, was full of concern "for my good friend Walter Wanger. I tremble to think what would happen to him and to a great studio, 20th Century-Fox, if Cleopatra for some reason is not finished." With Elizabeth Taylor having only six more weeks to go, I shall keep my fingers crossed until her final shot. It will be a brave producer who will want to take on this kind of colossal headache another time.

But Leave Shack Alone

Paint House and Save

Citizens fearful of painting their homes or other buildings because of a possible assessment increase have been offered cheering news.

A paint job on a building previously painted does not mean an automatic assessment boost; but painting a building previously derelict, so as to enhance its value materially, will raise the assessment.

The word came from Rodrick Clack, assistant city engineer, who said it was "not really in my bailiwick," following his discussion of the proposal to paint downtown buildings, at a dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce public affairs and tourist-industry groups.

After he had outlined the proposal for the downtown area the assessment question was brought up by member Mrs. Avis Walton,

"I think it's a shame," she said, "that, in a city of garden, residents should be penalized for beautifying their homes and gardens. Instead, those who don't improve should have their taxes raised."

Mr. Clack said his comments on assessment applied either to a home or business establishment.

Work of Expo-Lodging, represented in the Accommodation Centre here, is beginning to roll, Ian McCall told the meeting.

As of April 30, he said, 1,808 reservations had been handled, including about 20 tours for as many as 170 people.

Judging by developments at Seattle's Century 21 exposition, the number of people coming to this part of the continent may be far above early estimates—and the Accommodation Centre was gearing itself for a busy year.

Marine Life in Tanks to Top Outdoor Show

First large-scale saltwater marine-life aquarium exhibit ever to be shown in Victoria will be a feature attraction of the Jaycee-Colonist Outdoors Show which opens in the Curling Rink Monday for six days. The exhibit, which will tell the story of the federal department of fisheries and the fisheries research board of Canada in the Pacific area, will centre around seven 20-gallon and 50-gallon aquarium tanks which will be filled with live intertidal marine life captured in local waters.

It is hoped a live octopus will be in one of the tanks and Victoria skindivers, led by Jaycee Gordon Howard, will try to capture one or two from the Breakwater area this weekend. Octopus are among the most difficult of marine life to keep alive under artificial conditions.

John Christiansen of Satellite Fish Co. at Sidney is co-operating in providing live exhibits for the tanks. He is keeping cod and other fish in his big live tank on the Sidney wharf. Trawlers, operating out of Sidney, are assisting in capturing specimens.

Although they may be difficult to get at this time of year, it is hoped to have one or two varieties of live salmon in the tanks.

Oysters, clams, crabs, starfish and seaweeds will be displayed in conditions as near as possible to their natural habitat.

The federal fisheries department has designed the exhibit, especially for the Jaycee-Colonist Outdoors Show, and it could provide impetus to proposals for a full-scale marine aquarium for the Victoria area.

The Outdoors Show will include two other aquarium displays—one by the Victoria Aquarium Society, featuring tropical fish, and another by regional fish and game branch biologist David Horn, featuring freshwater game fish.

Big Kamloops trout have already been secured for the freshwater exhibit and Paul and Rene Nielsen of Prospect Lake are catching small-mouthed bass and cutthroat trout from Prospect Lake for the exhibit. There will also be fishing in the Y's-Men's Trout Pond.

Election Query: Are Meetings Of Any Value?

Federal election candidates in the two Greater Victoria ridings have begun to question the value of holding campaign meetings when there is no visiting "drawing card."

Geoffrey Mitchell, NDP candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, summed it up yesterday:

"I can see no value in holding evening meetings when the only ones who turn out are the party faithful," he said. "Sometimes you even have to take along your own audience, and I think that is hypocritical."

NO MEETINGS

Other candidates apparently tend toward Mr. Mitchell's view.

No meetings are planned this week by either James Audain, Social Credit, or Harry Fanthorpe, NDP, in Victoria.

In Esquimalt-Saanich no meetings are scheduled by Mr. Mitchell or Conservative George Chatterton.

But all four candidates will attend tea and coffee parties during the week.

DATE SET

Social Credit will nominate a candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich riding on May 17. Officials said there have been two or three people suggested, but so far they are not prepared to release names.

Biggest "name" to speak in Victoria next week is Paul Martin, former minister of health in the Liberal regime, who will speak on behalf of Liberal candidates Thomas Foster Isherwood and David Gross Tuesday.

MARTIN SCHEDULE

Liberal organizers said yesterday that Mr. Martin, who represents Essex East in the Commons, will speak at Oak Bay Junior High at 8:15 p.m. He is also due to make a brief appearance at an Esquimalt-Saanich rally in McMoran's Pavilion at Cordova Bay that night.

Liberal meetings in Victoria next week will be at Burnside School at 8:15 p.m. Monday, and at Monterey School at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, speaker will be Mr. Isherwood.

McPHILLIPS MEETING

Conservative A. DeS. McPhillips will hold a meeting at Sir James Douglas School at 8 p.m. Tuesday, and at the Boldermakers' Hall, Esquimalt, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

In Esquimalt-Saanich, Liberal David Gross will hold meetings at McMoran's on Tuesday and at the Mill Bay Community Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday.

NDP supporters will leave Victoria's CCF Hall on Douglas Street at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday to travel in a cavalcade to Port Alberni to hear NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

Car Crash Hurts Man

A young man from Oak Bay was unconscious when taken to hospital last night after a car he was driving crashed into the rear of a parked car on Quadra Street.

The victim was identified as Barry Craig, 1736 Lake. He was treated for head injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Hill Race Easy To See

Spectators will be able to get a close view of the racing cars during the Victoria Centennial Hill Climb at Mount Douglas Saturday and Sunday. Best view of the action probably will be from the high ground immediately above the hairpin turn, halfway up the hill.

An estimated 40 cars will take part in the race to the top of the 700-foot summit.

Drivers will practice all day Saturday, and again Sunday morning. The climb will start at 12:30 p.m. Sunday and continue for several hours.

Programs will be available with lists of cars and drivers. A commentary will be broadcast by loudspeakers along the route.

There will be ample parking facilities near the scene of the action.

Emergency measures to channel all locally-killed meat through a central inspection depot before it can be sold to the public may be in operation within a week.

In the meantime, metropolitan health board inspectors will carry out close checks on butcher shops to prevent a recurrence of the situation last week when 10 pounds of diseased beef liver was sold to an unsuspecting public.

OFFICIALS MEET

Plans for the emergency meat inspection depot were announced yesterday by health board chairman G. K. Sammon, following a meeting with provincial Agriculture Minister Frank Richter.

Health board officials expect the meat inspection depot to be in operation by June 1 at the latest, but Coun. Sammon stressed yesterday that it will be set up as soon as possible.

INSPECTION AREA

And the provincial government will declare a meat inspection area covering the metropolitan health board's area Oct. 1, once two new abattoirs are built in the area.

Closing of the abattoirs inspection service must wait because the member municipalities in the health board have to pass special bylaws prohibiting the sale of non-inspected meat.

BYLAW PREPARED

A suitable bylaw is being prepared by the provincial department of agriculture.

A special meeting of the health board will be called immediately to endorse the bylaw and recommend it to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney and Central Saanich.

SCHOOL BOARDS

The bylaw will also be submitted to the school boards of districts 61, 62, 63 and 64 for approval.

If the municipalities and school boards call meetings as soon as the health board endorses the bylaw, the inspection depot could be opened late next week.

RESPONSIBLE

"We are giving the municipalities an opportunity to protect the citizens, and if they don't pass it they will be responsible," Coun. Sammon said.

State Medicine Seen as Danger By City Coroner

Looking forward after half a century of medical practice in B.C., Dr. John Harvey Moore sees danger in the trend towards state medicine in Canada.

If this comes about, Dr. Moore said last night, the practice of medicine will deteriorate.

"The people will not get the quality of medical service from bureaucracy which they now enjoy from individual doctors in competition with each other," he said.

Dr. Moore said this standards of care which prevail under the state medical plan in Britain "wouldn't go over here."

Dr. Moore, who became coroner here in late 1960, was honored by the medical profession in Victoria on successful completion of 50 years of practice in the province.

STILL ACTIVE

At 75 he still is active in private practice in addition to his official duties.

Dr. J. L. Hefferman, president of Victoria Medical Society, described Dr. Moore as a "very modest man who is universally admired . . . and a constant source of wisdom in matters of up-to-date technique and medical practice."

BEGAN IN 1912

Dr. Moore began practice in Vancouver in 1912. He was born April 18, 1886, at Walkerton, Ont.

After service in the army during the First World War in which he attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel, Dr. Moore came to Victoria.

During an 18-year period he served as part-time pathologist in both Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital.

AWARDED DR. HART

For the past 15 years or more he assisted the late Dr. E. C. Hart in carrying out coroners' duties.

Dr. Moore in his long career has twice been president of Victoria Medical Society.

Would he do it again? "I loved every minute of it," said Dr. Moore.

Jobless Total Lowest Since 1957

Greater Victoria's employment picture is brighter than at any time since 1957, the National Employment Service announced yesterday.

A total of 1,970 men are registered with the unemployment insurance office for jobs. The figure is 30 below the best figure recorded during the entire summer last year and the lowest recorded since October, 1957.

A similar drop is shown in the number of women seeking work.

Public Invited To Saguénay

India, Pakistan

At Odds—Even in Canada

By TED PULFORD

Sultan Mohammad Khan, Pakistan's High Commissioner to Canada, yesterday took strong exception to comments made earlier in Victoria by the Indian High Commissioner on the simmering Kashmir dispute.

The Indian High Commissioner, B. N. Chakravarty, had accused Pakistan of acting in bad faith throughout the dispute.

Sultan Mohammad, on the other hand, laid the blame at India's doorstep.

His excellency was eager to put Pakistan's side of the issue before the public. "If my comments have troubled the Indian High Commissioner, I am sorry. However, the problem is urgent and no solution will be found by avoiding it."

He agreed that India had offered a no-war pact to Pakistan in a bid to end fears of overt armed intervention, but contended that such an agreement would be of little value while the Kashmir dispute remains unresolved.

Much of the present tension developed, he said, after India's armed intervention in Goa.

"Here is a country renowned throughout the world for her peaceful intentions, suddenly caught in an act of aggression. No wonder we are concerned."

His excellency spoke briefly to a late afternoon meeting of the Vancouver Island branch, Royal Commonwealth Society.

Last night, he told a meeting of the English Speaking Union that Pakistan proved itself more democratic than Britain during the first 11 years of its independence.

"It is generally accepted in a democracy that there is one party in power and one party in opposition, but in Pakistan we had 10 parties," he said.

In many instances, he said, two or three members would hold the balance of power in Parliament. "They would cross from one side to the other and bang would go the government."

Track Fast, Start Good Tory Odds-On Choice

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

AT THE POST: Supporter of Victoria Conservative Bert McPhillips called in at the Tory campaign rooms yesterday and left this "racetrack tout's" appraisal of the Ottawa Handicap to be run June 13.

Harry Fanthorpe (NDP): Haras Argue out of Karl Marx. First time out. Argue now Liberal Stables. Wind but no stamina. Will not be in contention. Can lose your shirt on this one.

James Audain (Secord): Secord Stables entry. Trained by Wacky Bennett. Fanthorpe may not at any odds. Paul Gaudin says "No Speed." He should know.

Foster Isherwood (Liberal): Lester de Pester entry. Romantic out of Don Quixote. Several previous tries. Still bird says he will never reach the wire.

Bert McPhillips (Tory): The favorite. Made it lengths ahead twice before. Will beat them all again.

CLEAR THE TRACK: And talking about horses, Secord Jimmy Audain casually mentions he is the owner of Supreme Verdict—"the best racehorse in B.C." It is, he said, a sign of things to come.

SEEN IN PASSING: Spy reports seeing a 1953 sedan, decorated with dozens of colorful streamers and a "Just Married" sign, parked outside the maternity ward at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

THE THINGS WE HEAR: Big announcement is due shortly about the establishment of a large pulp mill at Kitimat. In this case they won't need Peace River power for the development. There's plenty at Kitimat . . . Conservative workers at George Chamberlain's campaign headquarters now know what those red circles and stars on the huge map of Canada are. They're winter works projects . . . Government officials are keeping mum on Toronto reports that the investment firm of Gairdner and Co. has agreed to act as financial agent for the B.C. government. But local investment sources say the report is not true.

O CANADA!: The Elections Act prohibits candidates from advertising musical and other entertainment which may be staged in conjunction with campaign speeches.

But there's nothing to prevent it being mentioned in news stories.

So we can inform those interested that a program including Scottish pipers, Highland dancers and a piano and organ recital is all included in plans for the Memorial Arena rally for Prime Minister Dief-bachner May 23.

TOP THAT: The hunt for a top hat is over.

Comox-Alberni Conservative Harry McQuillan finally solved a problem which has been plaguing the logging community of Zeballos, on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

It's traditional to present a new top hat to the first visiting captain after a port is opened, and in a few days Zeballos will welcome its first deep-sea freighter at the new dock.

Hard hats are a dime a dozen, but top hats are a rarity. So Mr. McQuillan took time out from his campaign to travel to Victoria to buy one.

JUST FOR THE RECORD: The New Democratic Party has just released a list of the occupations of the 22 NDP candidates standing in B.C. in the federal election.

At the bottom of the list, rather pointedly, it is stated: "Labor Bosses—Nil."

INSTANT ITEM: An archaeologist dug up the thumb of a woman who lived 1,000,000 years ago. No doubt if he digs deeper he'll find a 1,000,000-year-old man underneath.

Artist Tells How To Help Indians

"Do you really want to help the Indian—do you try to make friends with him—would you like to see him get back his culture?" George Clutesi asked members of the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C. when he spoke to them yesterday following a luncheon at the Tally-Ho.

Mr. Clutesi, well known Indian artist from Alberni, chose as his subject "The West Coast Indian."

Answers to his questions, he said, were "no," generally speaking. He cited the incidence of last week at the Memorial Arena when only a few people turned out to see the young Indian dancers and singers when they put on a show.

HAPPY MAN

Before the white man came here the Indian was a happy man. He had a song for every occasion. He danced to express his feeling about everything from the lumbering of the great whales to the darting movements of the humming bird.

Party Marks 8th Year

There were 72 members of the Langford 50 Up Club present when the club celebrated its eighth birthday in the Cade Memorial Hall.

Entertainment was provided by pianist and impersonator, Mr. Adam Glover, a choral group under the direction of Mr. R. Stewart and plays and competitions. Mr. H. Bradley won the pie eating contest and Mr. W. Glover played the concertina.

After the concert, president, Mrs. M. Muir, introduced five of the original members of the club. Mrs. E. Bust of Vancouver, who cut the cake, Mr. R. Attie who blew out the candles, Mrs. M. Sawyer, Mrs. H. S. Simpson and Mrs. E. MacDonald.

Speaker Says

Council Supports Youth To Insure the Future

"To try to promote the youth of today in the work that they are doing", is one of the most important aims of the Canada Council, Mrs. Margaret Harvey said in an address entitled, "Canada Council, Our Problem in Spending $100,000,000," to the Women's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Harvey in speaking of her past three years' experience as a member of the Council told of the organization's endowment fund, capital grounds fund and scholarships which give hope and opportunity to young people with ability in all phases in the arts and education.

Funds derived from the estates of steel magnate Sir James Dunn and financier I. W. Killam provides aid to painters, playwrights, musicians, singers and its biggest headache Canada's three struggling ballet companies. Of Canada's 14 symphonies the Council contributes funds to nine. Scholarships are given to University professors to study abroad.

Mrs. Harvey said that it is only through holding large festivals, such as the Vancouver Festival, that the country's many theatres can be aided. One of the Council's aims is to project the arts to outlying districts.

A unique event that the Council sponsors is the Canada Council Train, which allows drama students from the East and the West to meet at Stratford's Shakespearean Festival. On the subject of abstract art, Mrs. Harvey said that although she herself does not understand it, it must be supported because it gives so much pleasure to so many people. She reminded her audience that in his time even Beethoven's work was considered radical.

The Canada Council extends its aid to foreign countries through the role of administering UNESCO's National Commission in Canada which it undertook in 1959. With respect to this part of its work, the speaker stressed that although the cost of responsibility is very great the cost of irresponsibility is much greater. The United Nations' Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization gives not only dollars and cents, but hope through education to the world over.

In an interesting and informative talk it was learned that the Canada Council looks to the future in helping today's youth, not only in its own country, but abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pearson Married at St. Paul's

Apple blossoms, tulips and dogwood decorated St. Paul's United Church, Sidney when Dorothy May Wood and Ronald Clifford Pearson were married in a double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. C. H. Whitmore.

During the signing of the register, "Because" was sung by Mrs. M. Royston accompanied on the organ by Howard Vine.

The pretty, dark-haired bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Wood, 5906 Sixth Street, and was given in marriage by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Pearson, 6908 Sixth Street, and was attended by Ross Spiers of Campbell River as best man.

Ushers were Jim Pearson of Campbell River and Herbert Beal of North Surrey. A floor-length gown of white nylon marquisette, worn by the bride, and was designed by the bride, and was carried off by a deep portrait collar. The long fitted sleeves fastened with tiny satin buttons and the softly full skirt was accented at the back with a bow. A dainty seed-pearl coronet held her shoulder length tulle veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. K. Starck as matron-of-honor wore wild rose pink and as bridesmaid, Miss Shirley Kerr chose mint green. Their dresses were designed alike with tiny sleeves, softly draped cowl necklines, the bouffant skirts with a front lace panel outlined with lace flowers, on the crisp nylon organdy. Big organdy roses with matching veils formed their headpieces and they carried bouquets of carnations, tinted to match their dresses.

Receiving guests at the reception at the K. of P. Hall in Sidney, Mrs. Wood had chosen a nylon jersey print in dark brown, worn with tiny feathered hat and accessories in bone shade. Mrs. Pearson wore a silk dress of turquoise shade with bone colored accessories.

Before leaving for a brief honeymoon, the bride changed to a soft wool suit in a muted brown and green plaid, worn with white hat, green accessories and a bronze chrysanthemum corsage. The newlyweds will shortly take up residence at their new home on Lochside Drive. Out-of-town guests came from Campbell River, Courtenay, Nanaimo, Victoria, North Surrey and White Rock.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: About that man who had to sleep on the kumpy couch because he accidentally called his wife by his secretary's name—honestly! Our society is becoming so psychiatrically oriented that every innocent phrase takes on deep significance. A person can't hiccup anymore without someone wondering what it means.

A man who calls his wife by his secretary's name may well be innocent. My mother had five children. She was forever calling me by my older sister's name. She called my younger sister by my name. And she called my brother Richard, which was my father's name. A psychiatrist could have a ball with THAT one.

The very morning I read your column about the mixed-up names, my boss called me by HIS wife's name. I know good and well he wasn't thinking about his wife. The old goat has three girl friends that I know of.

—DOWN WITH SIGMUND
Dear Down With: I agree there are too many people who read one paper-back on psychology, then go in for do-it-yourself psychoanalysis.

A man who calls his wife by someone else's name should not be banished to the couch for unfaithfulness. The slip of the tongue could mean something, true enough — but it could mean nothing, too.

Dear Ann Landers: Mr. and Mrs. J. were pleasant and friendly. We spent many social evenings together. Then Mrs. J. said, "Let's go in together and buy a wedding gift for Katherine." So I made the selection, charged the gift ($22.00) on my account and sent the gift with our joint signatures on the card.

We both received thank you notes, and Mrs. J. allowed as how she was pleased that I'd taken the lead off her mind. I reminded her that it was reasonable, too — only $22.00. She said "I'll mail you a cheque for my share."

That was five weeks ago. It occurred to me that I am a chump. My husband says, "Skip it and learn your lesson. Don't go in for any more joint gifts with Mrs. J." Is he right? My blood comes to a slow boil when I think of how I shopped for two hours to find just the right gift and then paid for HER share, too. Any comment? —BILKED.

Dear Bilked: Your husband is only half right. You should not go in for any more joint gifts with Mrs. J. But I don't agree that you should "skip it." Drop Mrs. J. a note in the mail and remind her of the money she owes you. If the note fails to produce results, it's probably a lost cause, and your lesson will have cost you $11.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are having a small argument. I hope you can settle it. I love to knit, and if I say so play gin-rummy until 3.00 a.m. I've seen him sit in front of the TV set for hours at a stretch, watching junk that our 8-year-old walks away from. When I remind him of this it's altogether different. How about it? —KNIT-WIT.

Dear Knit-Wit: Simple knitting requires limited skill, but a woman who can knit an argyle sock has my undying admiration.

As for gin-rummy, any baboon who can hold ten cards can play it. And my opinion of 80% of the TV fare is well known. It takes no brains whatever to sit in front of the boob tube and watch anything that moves.

Attendants Wear Turquoise Gowns

St. Saviour's Anglican Church was the scene of the marriage of Catherine Alma Bradshaw daughter of Mrs. R. Bradshaw of Victoria and the late Mr. Bradshaw, and Joseph Lander Comeau, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Comeau of Turgeon, New Brunswick. The bride was given in marriage by her brother Mr. Edward Bradshaw for the evening ceremony officiated by the Rev. Douglas Kendall.

A short dress of white pinstriped silk was chosen by the bride. It featured three quarter length sleeves and scoop neckline, the skirt was enhanced by a bustle effect at the back. Her chapel length veil was held by a coronet of crystal and seed pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried red tulle roses.

Maid of honor, Miss Margaret Cameron and bridesmaid, Miss Shirley Bell, wore identical gowns of turquoise beads de sole with scoop necklines and pleated full skirts. Harvey and Mr. Ronald Whismans of Beau de sole roses were on tone. Their crescent shaped bouquets were white carnations. Best man was Mr. William Harvey and Mr. Ronald Horner and Mr. George Piercy ushered.

At the reception held at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. D. Kendall proposed the toast. A three tiered wedding cake topped with pink roses centred the bride's table.

For her going away outfit, Mrs. Comeau chose a navy blue dress, white velvet hat and white accessories and orchid corsage.

After a honeymoon in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Comeau will make their home in Victoria.

Founding Celebrated

The members of the Sir James and Lady Douglas Chapter, IOOE, held a successful Building tea to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the chapter's founding in May 1912, by the late Mrs. R. B. McMicking. Mrs. Douglas Dullin, great-granddaughter of Sir James and Lady Douglas and Mrs. Percy Scurrah were seated at the head table with regent, Mrs. R. L. Boulton as were Mrs. Owen Fowler, Mrs. Elsie Loti and past officers. The head table was centred with a birthday cake in the shape of the centenary candle, flanked by gold candles and bowls of yellow tulips. Mrs. Scurrah cut the cake. The gold color theme was carried out in streamers and flowers on all tables.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Bertha Parsons gave an account of the chapter's achievements. A table of dolls in fashions of the last 100 years were presented by Mrs. J. Townsend and the Marmos Trio sang.

Mother's Day to Provide Themes Over Weekend

Mother's Day will provide the theme in many Greater Victoria churches this weekend.

A program directed by Steve Nischke will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the Seventh-Day Adventist Church. Small potted plants will be presented to each mother at the conclusion of the service.

Special family service at First United Church will be at 9:30 a.m. Sunday, which will include a ceremony of dedication to mission. Music will be by the youth choir.

In the evening the Order of DeMolay will hold a church parade and share in the service. At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church emphasis will be placed on the Christian home in the Mother's Day service, and there will be a service of infant baptism in the morning.

Iron Curtain Priests Job for Canadians?

WINNIPEG (TNS)—A prairie priest whose missionary zeal jumps international boundaries is training future priests to go behind the Iron Curtain.

"It's not an impossible situation, although it's a most grave one at present," said Very Rev. Nestor Hodowany, 34, rector of St. Vladimir's College in Roblin, Man.

His school trains boys for the novitiate in the Redemptorist Order, and is preparing them for special duties as missionaries.

"We have Redemptorists behind the Iron Curtain working underground at this very moment in the Ukraine, Slovakia and other areas," he said.

"And missionaries do find their way behind the Iron Curtain from time to time," he added.

"It is not our concern that our young priests will not get an opportunity to help restore the faith behind the Iron Curtain," the principal said. "We know they will."

Millions Call Unity Threat to Freedom

United Press International
"This church unity movement sounds like a wonderful idea," writes a woman in Bakersfield, Calif., "but there are many Christians who look upon it as a fearful thing."

She's right. And it's time these dissenters had their day in court.

The case for reuniting the Christian family has been stated often and eloquently in recent years by leaders of the Roman Catholic Church and major Protestant communions. Some folks have the idea no one is against church unity except a few bigots and hatemongers.

That is not true. Millions of sincere people, particularly in the fundamentalist or "Evangelical" wing of Protestantism, oppose the church unity movement because they regard it as a threat to religious freedom and sound doctrine.

Several ministers and theologians have emphasized that evangelical Protestants favor "spiritual unity" among Christians. They do not quarrel with the idea Christ intended his followers to love one another and live together in harmony rather than in a state of cold war.

Swiss 'Veteran' Crack Shot

Firing Confederate musket while visiting Civil War battleground near Richmond, Va., is Dr. Karl Barth, one of world's leading theologians. University of Basle, Switzerland, professor hit target—handkerchief 100 feet away. Dr. Barth, 76, loaded musket himself with ramrod, beside him. He formerly served in Swiss Army and is Civil War enthusiast.—(AP Photo-fax.)

What troubles them is the current worldwide quest for visible, organic unity of Christians.

Dr. George Ford, executive director of the National Association of Evangelicals, said religious freedom "demands diversity." Denominational divisions, instead of being "evil," may safeguard the right of free people to think differently about religion.

Fear of a "monolithic" church also was voiced by Rev. Harold Ockenga of Boston.

He said he found nothing in the Bible to warrant the belief Christ intended his church to be a single, centrally governed, institution. He said the church was established as a living "organism" which "may have a great many manifestations and external forms."

Several of the evangelical leaders expressed the conviction that organizational unity can be achieved on a wide scale only at the price of watering down and compromising essential Christian doctrines.

Dean Merrill Tenney of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., warned the Christian cause will not be served by church mergers, which are based on "the least common theological denominator."

"We shall get to the point," he said, "where we are united more and more on less and less until finally we have tremendous unity on nothing."

Rev. James DeForest Murch of Washington, D.C., chairman of the evangelical action commission of the National Association of Evangelicals, said the unity movement "is good insofar as it is a reaction against sectarian bigotry, intolerance, pride and exclusiveness."

"But," he said, "there are evidences of a willingness to compromise basic Christian doctrines and practice, and to accept a mutilated gospel to achieve a quick institutional unity."

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

What is the nature and destiny of man? Why are we so slow to see this is the real problem of our time? This is our essential difference from Communism.

The most frustrating problem today is to make people see the key question is not freedom, economics, education, not anything first except the question of the nature and destiny of man. Jesus was not stary-eyed romantic when He told us to seek first the Kingdom of God and all other things would be added unto us.

Once the spiritual nature and spiritual objectives of life are determined, other things fall into place. They are important, but they are by no means the worst enemy today is materialism.

If man is merely "a piece of ingenious plumbing," annihilated at death, the values of life also turn to dust. If the precious things are not permanent, if the struggles and sacrifices of life have no real significance, if the soul and its loves are not preserved, then our universe is immoral, life is flat, grey, ugly.

portant, but they are by no means the worst enemy today is materialism. If man is merely "a piece of ingenious plumbing," annihilated at death, the values of life also turn to dust. If the precious things are not permanent, if the struggles and sacrifices of life have no real significance, if the soul and its loves are not preserved, then our universe is immoral, life is flat, grey, ugly.

Unfinished Symphonies

If life has no meaning beyond a few minutes, what is the purpose of martyrdom, of character growth, of idealism and vision, merely to die with unfinished symphonies, or like Moses on Nebo's mountain top looking toward a Promised Land we shall never enter?

No one has thought seriously about life who has not found a meaning for death. Our greatest thinkers have considered death the central issue. If death be the conqueror of all, then it is the worst of evils.

The fear of death is the root anxiety which sprouts all other anxieties. Death is the final, ultimate sorrow.

No faith is more important on the reading desk. In the margin the editor had printed the words, "Here endeth the first lesson."

We Submerge Fear

We build all defences we can against death, submerge our fear in sensuality, buttress ourselves against it with physical fitness, our medical invention, and meet it with defiance or resigned contempt, building forest lawn cemeteries to disguise its ugly reality, yet all the time going through the motions of the condemned.

We cannot exaggerate the importance of faith in the immortality of man. It holds the key to the mystery of human existence. It transforms our whole outlook on life. The day after Dick Sheppard died, a London paper carried a photograph of the pulpit at St. Martin's where he had preached.

At the top of the beautifully winding stairs a beam of light shone down on the open Bible on the reading desk. In the margin the editor had printed the words, "Here endeth the first lesson."

Modern Youth Church Scorns Theories

VATICAN CITY (AP)—High prelates of the Roman Catholic Church said recently they would not accept some current theories that chastity is impossible for modern youth.

This view was expressed at a meeting of the central commission preparing for the church's forthcoming ecumenical council. The prelates, including 43 cardinals, discussed a draft proposal on moral matters presented by Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani.

"Current theories seek to contend that it is impossible for youth, particularly in modern times, to practise chastity," a communiqué issued by the press office of the ecumenical council said afterward.

"But the church does not agree with these theories. 'It is certain that modern life multiplies the incentives to evil things, through entertainment, beauty contests, spectacles, advertising posters, songs, magazines, beaches, mixed holidays and even some forms of sports,' the communiqué said.

"But for all this, the Roman Catholic Church condemns as erroneous all these theories on naturalism, so-called sexual education, and certain aspects of psychoanalysis."

The communiqué said the Roman Catholic Church "has always given virginity a great importance as a symbol of consecration to God."

Missing Here

Police Find Girl

An emotionally disturbed 15-year-old girl missing since Thursday from Royal Jubilee Hospital was located by police yesterday in Vancouver.

It was believed the girl escaped from the hospital through an open window. She had been under observation in the hospital since March 3, said Dr. J. L. Anderson, medical administrator.

EXTENSIVE SEARCH

An extensive police search was launched here for the girl before she was located in Vancouver.

Dr. Anderson said it was not known whether the girl would be returned to the hospital here, detained in Vancouver or sent to Nanaimo, where her parents live.

NDP Man Invites Students

New Democratic Party candidate for the Esquimalt-Saanich riding, Geoffrey Mitchell, is not overlooking the influence of college students in his federal election campaign.

Tonight he will be host to members and friends of the Victoria University New Democratic Club. The party will be at his home, Sea Bluff Farm, Metchosin, and guitarist Bob Nevue will attend.

AT MEETING

The NDP candidate will attend a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Crowe on Grant Road, Sooke, at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Next week, Mr. Mitchell will be on hand at the New Democratic booth at the Joyce Fair and will participate Tuesday in the cavalcade to Fort Alberni where T. C. Douglas will be campaigning.

Titor Hails U.S. Pilots As Brave

HALIFAX (UPI) — Soviet cosmonaut Gherman Titov said yesterday he would not fly in the United States spaceship Friendship Seven — not because of the ship itself but because of the booster.

Titov, in his second news conference during his one-day visit to the Nova Scotia capital, said the American cosmonauts are "courageous people."

Earlier, the 37-year-old cosmonaut said the spacecraft used by U.S. Colonel John Glenn in his orbital flight was "too little... too small... too hard to fly."

Titov said he hoped to make another voyage into space, and that on his orbital flight there were many thrills.

Strip Order Admitted By Official

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Douglas Lawless, superintendent of education, admitted Friday that some pupils at a local school were made to disrobe during a search for $50 stolen from a teacher.

John Robbins, principal of the 700-pupil Wellington Square High School, had denied Thursday that pupils were made to strip Wednesday during a search for the missing money.

Mr. Lawless said Friday the stripping was limited to 30 boys in grade 6 who had to remove their clothing "in the same manner followed during the changing to physical education attire."

Girls above grade 4 were checked by women and all boys by men teachers.

Mr. Lawless said all principals and teachers have been told to limit future investigations to questioning.

Deformities In Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta health department officials said Friday it is believed the drug thalidomide was responsible for deformities of three babies born in Edmonton hospitals. Three cases were reported earlier in Calgary. The drug now is banned from the market.

U.S. Navy May Rush To Laos Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was reported late last night to be planning action to strengthen United States military power in the area of Southeast Asia to meet the threat posed by the new crisis in Laos.

It is understood that the plans may result in the dispatch of U.S. naval forces into the area in the next day or so. The president and his advisers were concerned about the forward thrust of Communist-supported Pathet Lao rebels against the collapsing resistance of pro-Western government troops.

VIENTIANE (AP) — Pro-Communist battalions completed the occupation of north-west Laos Friday in an advance that carried them more than 100 miles beyond the cease-fire to the border of pro-Western Thailand.

Battered royal Lao troops were reported fleeing across the Mekong River into Thailand after abandoning Houei Sai, last government outpost in the north west.

FOLLOW UP
The royal government expressed fear the neutralist and Communist Pathet Lao rebels were ready to follow up their push to the Thai border with a general offensive against the royal capital of Luang Prabang in the heart of Laos and on the administrative capital of Vientiane in the south.

Terror
Terror in new Far East fighting is typified by look on face of 16-year-old girl spy for Viet Cong guerrillas, captured by South Viet Nam soldiers at Truong Hoa, 100 miles south of Saigon.

Columbia Stage Further?

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and British Columbia experts have reviewed certain difficulties in the agreement on the Columbia River Treaty. It was learned Friday, but there was no information on whether the two governments now see eye to eye.

In Toronto, Mr. Fleming confirmed Friday that further discussions on the treaty were held and said other meetings are planned. He did not elaborate.

Spectre of Drought Returns to Alberta

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Ranchers in the shortgrass country of southeastern Alberta are facing the spectre of another drought with no moisture, grass, grain or feed reserves left over from last year.

George G. Ross of Manyberries, Alta., president of the 1,800 member Western Stock Growers Association, said an other dry year could leave this part of the province nothing but a desert.

He said the spectre of yearlings could reach large proportions and if rain does not fall soon something will have to be done in a hurry.

Seeding operations in most districts here have been delayed by the drought conditions. It rained slightly this week but the moisture was not sufficient to bring seeds to life in the parched earth.

Wind storms last week swept acres of newly-seeded grain into the sky and re-seeding is expected to take place only after more rain has fallen.

Berth Hargrave of Walsh, Alta., 30 miles east of here on the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary, said ranchers in that district can hold out only three or four more weeks.

The Man Who Came To Lunch

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ottawa man who decided to eat lunch in the National Gallery's cafeteria today found himself in an embarrassing position.

He was met at the turnstiles by gallery director Dr. Charles Comfort. While a photographer snapped his picture with the gallery brass, he was presented with a reproduction of A. Y. Jackson's The Red Barn.

Thus did E. L. Smart, a communications co-ordinator with Bell Telephone, learn that he was the 1,000,000th visitor to the gallery's new building on Elgin Street in the heart of the capital.

"It was a little embarrassing," admitted Mr. Smart. "I think the gallery would have preferred an art lover rather than a person who just came around to eat."

Secret Army Killers Defy New French Crackdown

Fearful Refugees Start Big Exodus

PARIS (AP) — European settlers have begun fleeing to France from Algeria in a flow that has swelled to a torrent since the North African territory becomes independent.

The French government is set to handle 300,000 to 400,000 refugees from Algeria in the next four years out of a European population there estimated at about 1,000,000.

Because most Frenchmen are revolted by the European Secret Army's terrorist activities in Algeria, the first refugees have been received with enthusiasm in Metropolitan France. Political discussions quickly developed into arguments.

In addition, a Jewish merchant was shot dead by Moslems who raced through the European workers' quarter of Abah El Oued in a car, firing guns out the windows.

SHOOT TO KILL
In angry tones, the French high commissioner, Christian Fouchet, broadened crackdown measures, announced the capture of two Secret Army commando units and said up to 1,500 plainclothes men recruited from Moslem rebel army ranks and armed with shoot-to-kill orders soon will be roaming Algiers.

FOUR DISAPPEAR
Four Europeans — three of them youths in their early 20s — disappeared, apparently kidnapped by Moslems.

CRUCIAL PROBLEM
Of the whole range of the talks, Spaak said, "The Commonwealth is certainly the crucial problem."

The British team was led by Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath and Commonwealth Relations Minister Duncan Sandys.

STRONG DEMAND
Sources said Heath opened the session with a strong demand for continued preference for many Commonwealth goods.

The ECM ministers were reported willing to accept a list of not more than 50 items for preferential treatment — but Britain reportedly wants a list of about 500 items.

Nearest police is the three-man RCMP detachment at Watson Lake, 15 miles away. By the time they can answer a call for help the violence is usually over.

"I have to police the town," said Father Levaque.

He said the drunken miners came into town and abused 14-year-old Indian girls. Fights and brawls broke out continually and there were two or three shootings every week.

Father Levaque brought a petition to Victoria signed by many of the 150 Indians and 75 whites asking for an RCMP detachment at Lower Post. But in his talks with government and police officials, all he could get was a promise to put another man at Watson Lake.

Then Attorney-General Robert Bonner heard his story. "If the case is not exaggerated it would appear Father Levaque has an entirely understandable basis for his indignation," he said.

He promised to get a full report from the RCMP on the state of law and order at Lower Post, even if it means sending a senior investigator from provincial headquarters, and to dispose the police force in line with any recommendations.

Father Levaque, who paid the $400 for the trip out of his own pocket, said the people at Lower Post were taxpayers

Island Town, Mill Means 850 Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Tahsis Co., a firm with extensive logging interests, is quietly going ahead with plans to build a $45,000,000 pulp mill and townsite on the rugged west coast of Vancouver Island.

F. A. Grobb, company industrial development manager, in an interview Friday, gave these details:

● The mill will employ some 450 workers with another 400 in the woods.

● A new townsite — "not a company town" — will be established at Gold River on Muc-halat Arm, 100 miles north-west of Nanaimo.

● The as-yet-unnamed townsite will require an investment of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, will service 1,500 persons and will have its own shopping centre, schools, apartments and hospitals.

● The company expects to proceed with construction as soon as sales contracts are "firmed up."

The Tahsis Co. has extensive logging interests on the west coast of the Island.

VARIOUS FORMS
It holds about 1,000,000 acres of timber under various forms of tenure. It has an annual allowable cut of about 12,000,000 cubic feet.

A wholly-owned subsidiary of the East Asiatic Co. of Copenhagen, Denmark, it has sawmills at Port Alberni and Tahsis.

VARIOUS GRADES
Mr. Grobb said the project was started about 2½ years ago when the company realized it could face economic difficulties in the future unless it found more profitable uses for various grades of logs taken out of the woods.

So far $400,000 has been invested in preliminary work.

$4,092 For $2

VANCOUVER (CP) — Biggest payoff for a $2 wager in B.C. horse racing history, $4,092.96, went to the only winner of the Exacto pool at Exhibition Park here Friday. Jack Gold picked the horses that finished first and second in that order in the fourth race.

Whilly's Web won at 54-1 odds, paying $118.70 for a $2 straight bet, and Broxann, 3-1, paid $3.50 to place. (See Page 9).

Three Die 100 Hurt In Quake

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A heavy earthquake rocked south-central Mexico Friday. Two persons were reported killed near the Pacific resort of Acapulco. In Mexico City, where the quake lasted nine seconds, a man dropped dead of shock.

Officials said about 100 persons had been reported injured. Of these 36 were in Acapulco — one of the hardest hit areas — and 30 in the capital. There were no reports of tourist casualties.

Widespread damage was reported but it appeared to be minor.

DO NOT CONDUCT
"It is my unpleasant job to report to you the unanimous but reluctant recommendation of the executive, that we do not conduct a Community Chest drive in 1962," he said.

Richard Bower moved that the Chest not conduct its annual fund drive this year, "but that it stand ready to reactivate the Community Chest if and as soon as there is a demonstration of public support for a united appeal."

BY SUICIDE
Said Justin Harbord, former campaign chairman: "Sometimes it is necessary to give leadership by suicide."

Except for the year in which it was founded, 1937, he said, the Chest never had been a truly united fund. There had always been other agencies conducting separate appeals.

"It is a very sad thing we now propose, but a very necessary thing in the community interest."

Said Mr. Bower: "The recommendation of the executive was not a decision lightly reached. For some months now your executive has been exploring every avenue . . . There has been a great deal of soul-searching . . ."

"We don't point the finger at other charities outside the jurisdiction of the Community Chest. It may be that we are not acting in the interest of the public . . ."

PUBLIC REACTION
The hope was the news of the Chest's suspension would stir a public reaction that would restore it to life.

"If there is no response, perhaps the Community Chest is not wanted. This is the way we will find out."

Brian Tobin pleaded for the life of the Chest.

"The public has demonstrated by their support that they do want it," he said.

British Market Bid 'Not Going Badly'

BRUSSELS (UPI) — "Things are not going badly," Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak told newsmen when yesterday's opening-day talks on Britain's application to join the Common Market ended at midnight.

"We have studied the British proposals regarding goods manufactured in the Commonwealth and instructions have been given to the experts in this respect."

CRUCIAL PROBLEM
Of the whole range of the talks, Spaak said, "The Commonwealth is certainly the crucial problem."

The British team was led by Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath and Commonwealth Relations Minister Duncan Sandys.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Labor Secretary Jerry Holleman resigned last night and admitted he once took $1,000 for "personal expenses" from Texas farm magnate Billie Sol Estes.

Holleman said Estes gave him the money in January to help cover such expenses as the upkeep of his home. He said he never did anything for Estes in return.

Estes is under indictment for fraud in Texas. The charges against Estes revolve around his action within the government feed storage program.

Bonner Orders Probe of 'Hell Hole'

By PETER BRUTON
Attorney-General Bonner has ordered a full RCMP investigation into the need for police to be stationed at the "hell hole" of Lower Post on the B.C.-Yukon border.

A grim tale of lawlessness, sudden death, shootings, beatings and sex offences — was unfolded here yesterday by 67-year-old Father Yvon Levaque, a former wrestler and now principal of the Indian residential school.

Nearest police is the three-man RCMP detachment at Watson Lake, 15 miles away. By the time they can answer a call for help the violence is usually over.

"I have to police the town," said Father Levaque.

He said the drunken miners came into town and abused 14-year-old Indian girls. Fights and brawls broke out continually and there were two or three shootings every week.

Father Levaque, who paid the $400 for the trip out of his own pocket, said the people at Lower Post were taxpayers and deserved proper protection just like anybody else.

"The main cause of the trouble is an influx of miners and other transients, white trash who think they can abuse the Indian people with little or no chance of being caught," he said.

"The Indians had nothing to do with white men until 20 years ago. They still believed in witchcraft and left their sick to die on the trail. Now they

New Municipal Hall Tax Rate for 1962 Set in Comox Village

COMOX—A $40,700 municipal building contract has been awarded to Lickley, Johnson and Palmer Construction Co. The building, housing a health unit and municipal offices, is to be started next week with the completion date Sept. 1. The self with the Expo-Lodging service municipal building will be turned over to the Comox village library.

The village council has also passed a $148,000 budget for 1962 setting the tax rate at 34 mills, down four from last year. Schools account for more than $45,000 and public works $53,000.

Reply to Monaco?

COURTENAY—Upper Island Sports Club is seeking approval and support for what would be B.C.'s answer to Monaco's annual "race around the houses."

The club wants to hold a two-hour sports car race on Courtenay streets July 1 and anticipates at least a 15-car entry from Vancouver, Nanaimo, Alberni, Courtenay and Victoria.

Probation Broken

DUNCAN—A Nanaimo man already facing 2½ years in B.C. penitentiary for a breach of probation was sentenced to a concurrent term of three years here, yesterday.

Bernard Dennett was sentenced after he was found guilty on two charges of leaving worthless cheques. Police testified he cashed a $50 cheque and

4-H Contest Fair Feature

One of the feature attractions at the Victoria Exhibition will be demonstrations by 4-H members in the agricultural section.

Competition will be held from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Wednesday and again at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

The week-long Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored exhibition opens Monday.

Qualicum Census Protest Works

QUALICUM BEACH—A protest to the federal statistics bureau over initial results of the most recent census has gained for the village a population increase of 73 persons, to 150.

First figures released by Ottawa showed Qualicum's population had dropped by 42 since the previous census. This would have cost the village $673 a year in per capita grants.

The new figure places a $1,500 bonus in the hands of the village commission.

Two Charged

Brannan Fugitives Held After Chase

NANAIMO—A wild chase through Nanaimo streets Friday morning resulted in the capture of two Brannan Lake boys and the escape of another.

Chase began when the three boys, in a stolen car, met a police car on North Terminal. The boys' vehicle missed a corner at Vancouver and Terminal, shot off the road,

Fence Post Thief Now Behind Bars

DUNCAN—A Cowichan Station man, Frank Doskiel, pleaded not guilty in police court yesterday to theft of 103 cedar fence posts but was convicted and sentenced to six months in Oakalla prison farm.

He had taken the fence posts from the property of Leslie A. Ratcliffe at Cowichan Station.

Wendel Ratcliffe, a brother of Leslie, told court two piles of fence posts had been taken away when he went to his brother's place March 18.

Another witness, James Boyle of Cobble Hill, testified Doskiel had delivered the posts to him as payment for gravel but Mr. Boyle said he did not know they had been stolen.

Inside Look at Radar Traps

NANAIMO—Magistrate's court got an inside look Friday at the workings of radar speed traps as a motorist pleaded not guilty to a speeding charge, the first such plea after the local highway patrol used radar for several days at the end of April.

Cpt. John Urquhart, an expert in the operation of radar equipment, testified that, before he put his radar set in operation, he made two important accuracy tests.

He tested the set with a tuning fork to make sure it was operating correctly and he had a police car run through the radar.

The police car speedometer read 39 miles an hour and the radar read 38—and the radar set has a built-in tolerance of one per cent.

Urquhart discounted any theory that two cars passing in opposite directions could upset the radar set.

The question of when a car is "unattended" came up when Chamber of Commerce tourist promotion head Dave Jones was charged with leaving his car unattended on Commercial Street, with the keys in the ignition.

It was pointed out Mr. Jones was across the street and his car was in view.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor said that, in the strict sense, the car was unattended, he handed out a small fine.

The magistrate recommended that the RCMP adjust the traffic light at Townsite and Terminal. He agreed with lawyer Sid Clark that the light is not properly timed and fools motorists, but found Anne Jarbie, a city housewife, guilty of running the red light.

The magistrate also warned Nanaimo motorists to look sharp before entering a through street.

Fernande Louise Smith said she looked before entering Fitzwilliam from Pridoux, but failed to see an oncoming car before she had collided with it.

A clean driving record for five years earned the minimum penalty for Robert Carpenter, convicted of passing a car on the right during heavy traffic on Terminal Avenue.

A Nanaimo man blamed unusual highway markings in the Cariboo for a charge against him. Stephen Finlay was convicted for speeding and crossing a double line near Clinton last month.

He said that, if the road had been on the island, it would have been a broken line. He could see clearly ¼ mile ahead.

Urquhart discounted any theory that two cars passing in opposite directions could upset the radar set.

The question of when a car is "unattended" came up when Chamber of Commerce tourist promotion head Dave Jones was charged with leaving his car unattended on Commercial Street, with the keys in the ignition.

It was pointed out Mr. Jones was across the street and his car was in view.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor said that, in the strict sense, the car was unattended, he handed out a small fine.

The magistrate recommended that the RCMP adjust the traffic light at Townsite and Terminal. He agreed with lawyer Sid Clark that the light is not properly timed and fools motorists, but found Anne Jarbie, a city housewife, guilty of running the red light.

The magistrate also warned Nanaimo motorists to look sharp before entering a through street.

Fernande Louise Smith said she looked before entering Fitzwilliam from Pridoux, but failed to see an oncoming car before she had collided with it.

A clean driving record for five years earned the minimum penalty for Robert Carpenter, convicted of passing a car on the right during heavy traffic on Terminal Avenue.

A Nanaimo man blamed unusual highway markings in the Cariboo for a charge against him. Stephen Finlay was convicted for speeding and crossing a double line near Clinton last month.

He said that, if the road had been on the island, it would have been a broken line. He could see clearly ¼ mile ahead.

Magistrate's court got an inside look Friday at the workings of radar speed traps as a motorist pleaded not guilty to a speeding charge, the first such plea after the local highway patrol used radar for several days at the end of April.

Cpt. John Urquhart, an expert in the operation of radar equipment, testified that, before he put his radar set in operation, he made two important accuracy tests.

He tested the set with a tuning fork to make sure it was operating correctly and he had a police car run through the radar.

The police car speedometer read 39 miles an hour and the radar read 38—and the radar set has a built-in tolerance of one per cent.

Marine Life in Tanks to Top Outdoor Show

First large-scale saltwater marine-life aquarium exhibit ever to be shown in Victoria will be a feature attraction of the Jaycees Outdoor Show which opens in the Curling Rink Monday for six days.

The exhibit, which will tell the story of the federal department of fisheries and the fisheries research board of Canada in the Pacific area, will centre around seven 20-gallon and 50-gallon aquarium tanks which will be filled with live inter-tidal marine life captured in local waters.

It is hoped a live octopus will be in one of the tanks and Victoria skindivers, led by Jaycee Gordon Howard, will try to capture one or two from the Breakwater area this weekend.

Octopus are among the most difficult of marine life to keep alive under artificial conditions.

John Christiansen of Satellite Fish Co. at Sidney is co-operating in providing live exhibits for the tanks. He is keeping cod and other fish in his big live tank on the Sidney wharf.

Trawlers, operating out of Sidney, are assisting in capturing specimens.

Although they may be difficult to get at this time of year, it is hoped to have one or two varieties of live salmon in the tanks.

Oysters, clams, crabs, starfish and seaweeds will be displayed in conditions as near as possible to their natural habitat.

The federal fisheries department has designed the exhibit, especially for the Jaycees-Colonial Outdoor Show, and it could provide impetus to proposals for a full-scale marine aquarium for the Victoria area.

The Outdoor Show will include two other aquarium displays—one by the Victoria Aquarium Society, featuring tropical fish, and another by regional fish and game branch biologist David Hurn, featuring freshwater game fish.

Big Kamloops trout have already been secured for the freshwater exhibit and Paul and Rene Nielsen of Prospect Lake are catching small-mouthed bass and cutthroat trout from Prospect Lake for the exhibit.

There will also be fishing in the Y's-Men's Trout Pond.

Election Query: Are Meetings Of Any Value?

Federal election candidates in the two Greater Victoria ridings have begun to question the value of holding campaign meetings when there is no visiting "drawing-card."

Geoffrey Mitchell, NDP candidate for Esquimalt-Saanich, summed it up yesterday:

"I can see no value in holding evening meetings when the only ones who turn out are the party faithful," he said. "Sometimes you even have to take along your own audience, and I think that is hypocritical."

Other candidates apparently tend toward Mr. Mitchell's view.

No meetings are planned this week by either James Audain, Social Credit, or Harry Fanthorpe, NDP, in Victoria.

In Esquimalt-Saanich no meetings are scheduled by Mr. Mitchell or Conservative George Chatterton.

But all four candidates will attend tea and coffee parties during the week.

DATE SET
Social Credit will nominate a candidate for the Esquimalt-Saanich riding on May 17. Officials said there have been two or three people suggested, but so far they are not prepared to release names.

Biggest "name" to speak in Victoria next week is Paul Martin, former minister of health in the Liberal regime, who will speak on behalf of Liberal candidates Thomas Foster Isherwood and David Groos Tuesday.

MARTIN SCHEDULE

Liberal organizers said yesterday that Mr. Martin, who represents Essex East in the Commons, will speak at Oak Bay Junior High at 8:15 p.m. He is also due to make a brief appearance at an Esquimalt-Saanich rally in McMorran's Pavilion at Cordova Bay that night.

Liberal meetings in Victoria next week will be at Burnside School at 8:15 p.m. Monday, and at Monterey School at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, speaker will be Mr. Isherwood.

McPHILLIPS MEETING

Conservative A. DeB. McPhillips will hold a meeting at Sir James Douglas School at 8 p.m. Tuesday, and at the Rollermakers' Hall, Esquimalt, at 8 p.m. Thursday.

In Esquimalt-Saanich, Liberal David Groos will hold meetings at McMorran's on Tuesday and at the Mill Bay Community Hall at 8 p.m. Thursday.

NDP supporters will leave Victoria's CCF Hall on Douglas Street at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday to travel in a cavalcade to Port Alberni to hear NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

Family Service Set For Mother's Day

A special family worship service will mark Mother's Day Sunday when Anno de Raad conducts services at 11 a.m. in the Port Renfrew United Church in the Community Hall. Youth rally will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. in the hall.

Hill Race Easy To See

Spectators will be able to get a close view of the racing cars during the Victoria Centennial Hill Climb at Mount Douglas Saturday and Sunday.

Best view of the action probably will be from the high ground immediately above the hairpin turn, halfway up the hill.

An estimated 60 cars will take part in the races to the top of the 700-foot summit.

Drivers will practice all day Saturday, and again Sunday morning. The climb will start at 12:30 p.m. Sunday and continue for several hours.

Programs will be available with lists of cars and drivers. A commentary will be broadcast by loudspeakers along the route.

There will be ample parking facilities near the scene of the action.

Europeans Tell Islanders:

Market Wants Lumber

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN—The probability of increased Canadian lumber trade with European Common Market countries has been forecast here by members of a 32-man timber delegation from Europe.

They were guests of the provincial government and B.C. lumber firms.

Representatives came from Belgium, France, Germany, Italy and the Netherlands to study timber processing and market conditions.

Spokesman for the German group, consul Wolfgang Eichenberg, president of the Timber Export Association, told newsmen timber imports are not restricted for any member of the Common Market family so far.

He added: "It may be changed but we do not know."

He felt that as timber resources in the Common Market countries are very limited, Canada's chances to sell lumber there are greater than ever.

The new exchange rate of the Canadian dollar is favorable.

The German spokesman pointed out the Common Market country's timber demand is largely satisfied at present through such non-member countries as Norway, Sweden and Finland.

Other members of the German group, Hermann Elshorst of Hamburg, Heinz Schweyer of Mannheim and Peter Schelwe of Muenster, agreed with their spokesman, who said Germany is especially interested in purchasing packaged lumber.

Mr. Schelwe said packaged lumber should be packed according to individual requirements. He added sawmills here must be flexible and an official of B.C. Forest Products said such requirements can be met here.

Representatives explained Europe-bound packaged lumber has to be frequently transferred from deep-sea ships to smaller river boats and should be shipped in smaller bundles.

All members agreed Canadian-packaged lumber companies favorably with that from Scandinavia.

Germany, said the spokesman, is interested in buying seasoned high-grade lumber and unseasoned lower-grade lumber from Canada. The Germans showed great interest in processing of hemlock and Mr. Schelwe pointed out European countries intend to use more lumber, particularly hemlock, for construction purposes.

Most members of the Common Market timber delegation found Canadian timber operations very efficient. Divided in groups the delegates toured sawmills at Chemainus, Halls Creek, Homestead Bay, Youbou, Port Alberni and Campbell River.

Emergency measures to channel all locally-killed meat through a central inspection depot before it can be sold to the public may be in operation within a week.

In the meantime, metropolitan health board inspectors will carry out close checks on butcher shops to prevent recurrence of the situation last week when 10 pounds of diseased beef liver was sold to an unsuspecting public.

OFFICIALS MEET
Plans for the emergency meat inspection depot were announced yesterday by health board chairman G. K. Sammon, following a meeting with provincial Agriculture Minister Frank Richter.

Health board officials expect the meat inspection depot to be in operation by June 1 at the latest, but Coun. Sammon stressed yesterday that it will be set up as soon as possible.

INSPECTION AREA
And the provincial government will declare a meat inspection area covering the metropolitan health board's area Oct. 1, once two new abattoirs are built in the area.

Opening of the stopgap inspection service must wait because the member municipalities in the health board have to pass special bylaws prohibiting the sale of non-inspected meat.

BYLAW PREPARED
A suitable bylaw is being prepared by the provincial department of agriculture.

A special meeting of the health board will be called immediately to endorse the bylaw and recommend it to Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Sidney and Central Saanich.

SCHOOL BOARDS
The bylaw will also be submitted to the school boards of districts 61, 62, 63 and 64 for approval.

If the municipalities and school boards call meetings as soon as the health board endorses the bylaw, the inspection depot could be opened late next week.

RESPONSIBLE
"We are giving the municipalities an opportunity to protect the citizens, and if they don't pass it they will be responsible," Coun. Sammon said.

State Medicine Seen as Danger By City Coroner

Looking forward after half a century of medical practice in B.C., Dr. John Harvey Moore sees danger in the trend towards state medicine in Canada.

If this comes about, Dr. Moore said last night, the practice of medicine will deteriorate.

"The people will not get the quality of medical service from bureaucracy which they now enjoy from individual doctors in competition with each other," he said.

Dr. Moore said the standards of care which prevail under the state medical plan in Britain, "wouldn't go over here."

Dr. Moore, who became coroner here in late 1960, was horrified by the medical profession in Victoria on successful completion of 50 years of practice in the province.

STILL ACTIVE

At 73 he still is active in private practice in addition to his official duties.

Dr. J. L. Heffernan, president of Victoria Medical Society, described Dr. Moore as a "very modest man who is a universally admired... (and) a constant source of wisdom in matters of up-to-date technique and medical practice."

BEGAN IN 1912

Dr. Moore began practice in Vancouver in 1912. He was born April 18, 1889, at Walkerton, Ont.

After service in the army during the First World War in which he attained the rank of lieutenant colonel, Dr. Moore came to Victoria.

During an 18-year period he served as part-time pathologist in both Royal Jubilee Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital.

ASSISTED DR. HART

For the past 15 years or more he assisted the late Dr. E. C. Hart in carrying out coroner's duties.

Dr. Moore in his long career has twice been president of Victoria Medical Society.

"Would he do it again? 'I loved every minute of it,' said Dr. Moore.

U.S. Navy May Rush To Laos Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was reported late last night to be planning action to strengthen United States military power in the area of Southeast Asia to meet the threat posed by the new crisis in Laos.

It is understood that the plans may result in the dispatch of U.S. naval forces into the area in the next day or so. The president and his advisers were concerned about the forward thrust of Communist-supported Pathet Lao rebels against the collapsing resistance of pro-Western government troops.

VIENTIANE (AP) — Pro-Communist battalions completed the occupation of north-west Laos Friday in an advance that carried them more than 100 miles beyond the cease-fire to the border of pro-Western Thailand.

Battered royal Laotian troops were reported fleeing across the Mekong River into Thailand after abandoning Houei Sai, last government outpost in the north west.

FOLLOW UP

The royal government expressed fear the neutralist and Communist Pathet Lao rebels were ready to follow up their push to the Thai border with a general offensive against the royal capital of Luang Prabang in the heart of Laos and on the administrative capital of Vientiane in the south.

SINCE THE FALL

The defence ministry said that three of five Russian-made MiG-17 fighters have been downed daily at two air bases in the rebels' newly won territory since the fall of Nam Tha five days ago. A communiqué also reported movement of an artillery regiment from the rebel headquarters in the Plain de Jarre.

CALL FOR PEACE

In Vientiane, King Savang Vatthana appealed to Laotian leaders to try to solve the crisis peacefully.

The rebel advance, in defiance of a demand by neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma to halt the offensive, seemed certain to bring new demands by Thailand for action by the United States or the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to check the rebels.

PERSONAL LOOK

Thailand's Premier Marshal Sarit Thanarat planned a personal inspection of the border area before deciding whether to send more Thai troops to the frontier.

Columbia Stage Further?

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal and British Columbia experts have reviewed certain difficulties in the agreement on the Columbia River Treaty. It was learned Friday, but there was no information on whether the two governments now see eye to eye.

In Toronto, Mr. Fleming confirmed Friday that further discussions on the treaty were held over from last year, and said that other meetings are planned. He did not elaborate.

Spectre of Drought Returns to Alberta

MEDICINE HAT (CP)—Ranchers in the shortgrass country of southeastern Alberta are facing the dread spectre of another drought with no moisture, grass, grain or feed reserves left over from last year.

George G. Ross of Marysville, Alta., president of the 1,800 member Western Stock Growers Association, said another dry year could leave this part of the province nothing but a desert.

He said the exodus of yearlings could reach large proportions and if rain does not fall soon something will have to be done in a hurry.

Seeding operations in most districts here have been delayed by the drought conditions. It rained slightly this week but the moisture was not sufficient to bring seeds to life in the parched earth.

Wind storms last week swept acres of newly-seeded grain into the sky and re-seeding is expected to take place only after more rain has fallen.

Berth Hargrave of Walsh, Alta., 30 miles east of here on the Alberta-Saskatchewan boundary, said ranchers in that district can hold out only three or four more weeks.

The Man Who Came To Lunch

OTTAWA (CP)—An Ottawa man who decided to eat lunch in the National Gallery's cafeteria Friday found himself in an embarrassing position.

He was met at the turnstiles by gallery director Dr. Charles Comfort. While a photographer snapped his picture with the gallery brass, he was presented with a reproduction of A. Y. Jackson's The Red Barn.

Thus did E. L. Smart, a communications co-ordinator with Bell Telephone, learn that he was the 1,000,000th visitor to the gallery's new building on Elgin Street in the heart of the capital.

"It was a little embarrassing," admitted Mr. Smart. "I think the gallery would have preferred an art lover rather than a person who just came around to eat."

Secret Army Killers Defy New French Crackdown

Fearful Refugees Start Big Exodus

PARIS (AP)—European settlers have begun fleeing to France from Algeria in a flow expected to swell to a torrent as the North African territory becomes independent. The French government is set to handle 300,000 to 400,000 refugees from Algeria in the next four years out of a European population there estimated at about 1,000,000.

Because most Frenchmen are revolted by the European Secret Army's terrorist activities in Algeria, the first refugees have been received with cordiness in Metropolitan France. Political discussions quickly developed into arguments.

Four Europeans — three of them youths in their early 20s — disappeared, apparently kidnapped in Algiers.

In addition, a Jewish merchant was shot dead by Muslims who raced through the European workers' quarter of Bab El Oued in a car, firing guns out the windows.

In angry tones, the French high commissioner, Christian Fouchet, broadened crackdown measures, announced the capture of two Secret Army commando units and said up to 1,500 plainclothes men recruited from Muslim rebel army ranks and armed with shoot-to-kill orders soon will be roaming Algiers.

Island Town, Mill Means 850 Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Tahsis Co., a firm with extensive logging interests, is quietly going ahead with plans to build a $45,000,000 pulp mill and townsite on the rugged west coast of Vancouver Island.

F. A. Grobb, company industrial development manager, in an interview Friday, gave these details:

● The mill will employ some 450 workers with another 400 in the woods.

● A new townsite — "not a company town" — will be established at Gold River on Muc-halat Arm, 100 miles north-west of Nanaimo.

● The as-yet-named townsite will require an investment of between $3,000,000 and $6,000,000, will service 1,500 persons and will have its own shopping centre, schools, apartments and hospitals.

● The company expects to proceed with construction as soon as sales contracts are "firmed up."

The Tahsis Co. has extensive logging interests on the west coast of the island.

VARIOUS FORMS

It holds about 1,000,000 acres of timber under various forms of tenure. It has an annual allowable cut of about 12,000,000 cubic feet.

A wholly-owned subsidiary of the East Asiatic Co. of Copenhagen, Denmark, it has sawmills at Port Alberni and Tahsis.

VARIOUS GRADES

Mr. Grobb said the project was started about 2½ years ago when the company realized it could face economic difficulties in the future unless it found more profitable uses for various grades of logs taken out of the woods.

So far $400,000 has been invested in preliminary work.

$4.092 For $2

VANCOUVER (CP) — Biggest payoff for a $2 wager in B.C. horse racing history, $4,092, went to the only winner of the Exacto pool at Exhibition Park here Friday. Jack Gold picked the horses that finished first and second in that order in the fourth race.

Willy's Web was at 34-1 odds, paying $110.70 for a $2 straight bet, and Hexxmas, $4, paid $40.10 to place. (See Page 9).

Bomb Hoax Stalls TCA Plane

An anonymous telephone call to the Colonist last night set the stage for a bomb scare which delayed 19 Vancouver-bound TCA passengers for an hour and 33 minutes.

Flight 112, a Viscount turboprop, was scheduled to leave Patricia Bay airport at 10:15 p.m. but was grounded after the Colonist reported the call to police.

A thorough search of the aircraft failed to produce anything resembling a bomb and passengers were loaded back on board within the hour — and taken off for the second time.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Assistant Labor Secretary Jerry Holleman resigned last night and admitted he once took $1,000 for "personal expenses" from Texas farm magnate Billie Sol Estes.

Holleman said Estes gave him the money in January to help cover such expenses as the upkeep of his home. He said he never did anything for Estes in return.

Estes is under indictment for fraud in Texas. The charges against Estes revolve around his action within the government feed storage program.

Greater Victoria Community Chest has one week to live.

Unless rescue arrives before next Friday, the 23-year-old cooperative fund-raising organization will shut down and leave its 22 member agencies to raise money by themselves.

Directors of the Chest at a meeting yesterday granted the one-week reprieve against the advice of their executive.

Members of the executive recommended the Chest close at once. But directors turned down the recommendation, and decided to throw the Chest on the mercy of the public.

Life or death for the Chest depends on two factors:

● Whether Victoria people show an interest.

● Whether the Chest can recruit a campaign chairman and eight district chairmen.

If public response is lukewarm and if no fund-raising leader comes forward, 22 agencies ranging from the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society to the Family and Children's Service will have to knock on doors in separate appeals for money.

THUMBS DOWN

Letters went out yesterday over the signature of Community Chest president George Gregory to 37 top guilders, asking if they would pledge themselves to a "united appeal" and turn thumbs down on charities that refused to join.

The donors — commercial firms and individuals — were asked to reply before 4 p.m. Friday, when directors will meet to decide the fate of the Chest.

John Wallace, general manager of Yarrow, volunteered to be campaign chairman next year — provided the Chest survives until then. He said he had no time to spare this season.

Still unresolved is the problem of getting someone to manage the campaign this year.

Mr. Gregory told directors the executive had decided to recommend suspension of the Chest.

DO NOT CONDUCT

"It is my unpleasant job to report to you the unanimous but reluctant recommendation of the executive, that we do not conduct a Community Chest drive in 1962," he said.

Richard Bower moved that the Chest not conduct its annual fund drive this year, "but that it stand ready to reactivate the Community Chest if and as soon as there is a demonstration of public support for a united appeal."

BY SUICIDE

Said Justin Harbord, former campaign chairman: "Sometimes it is necessary to give leadership by suicide."

Except for the year in which it was founded, 1937, he said, the Chest never had been a truly united fund. There had always been other agencies conducting separate appeals.

"It is a very and thing we now propose, but a very necessary thing in the community interest."

Said Mr. Bower: "The recommendation of the executive was not a decision lightly reached. For some months now your executive has been exploring every avenue . . . There has been a great deal of soul-searching . . .

"We don't point the finger at other charities outside the jurisdiction of the Community Chest. It may be that we are not acting in the interest of the public."

FUEL REACTION

The hope was the news of the Chest's suspension would stir a public reaction that would restore it to life.

"If there is no response, perhaps the Community Chest is not wanted. This is the way we will find out."

Brian Tobin pleaded for the life of the Chest.

"The public has demonstrated by their support that they do want it," he said.

Bonner Orders Probe of 'Hell Hole'

By PETER MURTON

Attorney General Bonner has ordered a full RCMP investigation into the need for police to be stationed at the "hell hole" of Lower Post on the B.C.-Yukon border.

A grim tale of lawlessness — sudden death, shootings, beatings and sex offences — was unfolded here yesterday by 47-year-old Father Yvon Levaque, a former wrestler and now principal of the Indian residential school.

Nearby police is the three-man RCMP detachment at Watson Lake, 15 miles away. By the time they can answer a call for help the violence is usually over.

"I have to police the town," said Father Levaque.

He said the drunken miners came into town and abused 14-year-old Indian girls, fights and brawls broke out continually and there were two or three shootings every week.

Father Levaque brought a petition to Victoria signed by many of the 150 Indians and 75 whites asking for an RCMP detachment at Lower Post. But, in his talks with government and police officials, all he could get was a promise to put another man at Watson Lake.

Then Attorney General Robert Bonner heard his story.

"If the case is not exaggerated it would appear Father Levaque has an entirely understandable basis for his indignation," he said.

He promised to get a full report from the RCMP on the state of law and order at Lower Post, even if it means sending a senior investigator from provincial headquarters, and to dispose the police forces in line with any recommendations.

Father Levaque, who paid the $400 for the trip out of his own pocket, said the people at Lower Post were taxpayers and deserved proper protection just like anybody else.
